U.N. Quits: Diplomats To Solve Formosa Issue

Russian Plan Is Condemned

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y.—AP—Rebuffed by Red China and Russia, the UN Security Council Monday suspended indefinitely its public efforts to achieve a cease-fire in Formosa strait. It left the next move to diplomatic manoeuvres here and in the capitals of the major powers.

The council voted 10 to 1 against considering now a Moscow plan to end the hostilities by condemning alleged U.S. aggression against China and ordering the withdrawal of American forces from Formosa.

Henry Cabot Lodge Jr., chief U.S. delegate, said the council has not concluded its consideration of a proposal by Sir Leslie Munro, New Zealand, for a cease-fire in the troubled area.

"In these circumstances, we would have done the council and the cause of peace an injustice if we were to allow discussion of the Soviet item to becloud the issues of the urgent matter at hand."

ADJOURNS WITHOUT VOTE

Sir Pierson Dixon of Britain, whose government has taken the lead in consultations with Moscow for some arrangement to stop the fighting, said that the Red Chinese rejection was not helpful. He suggested the council adjourn while government study the situation and consult.

This the council did after a three-hour session and without a vote.

In the council T. F. Tsiang, Nationalist Chinese delegate, said Chou's reply was "an insult to the Security Council."

"I think it should be expurgated from the records of the United Nations," he added.

Tsiang assailed Munro, who had put before the council last month the problem of the hostilities in the offshore islands between Formosa and the Chinese mainland. Tsiang said that Munro's "moderation" in expressing regret at Chou's message was an attempt to lead the council from the world of "hard fact" into a "charming Alice's wonderland."

Arkady A. Sobolev, Soviet Union, demanded the council unseat the "Kuomintang clique." He said there would be no solution of the crisis unless Peiping took part in the discussions.

Princess Arrives At Antigua

By HAIG NICHOLSON

ST. JOHN'S, Antigua (Reuters)—Princess Margaret arrived at this "rum- and- arrowroot" Caribbean island Monday on a royal barge which edged into the harbor between sloops and fishing boats festooned with Union Jacks.

The princess, wearing a turquoise straw hat and a full-skirted blue shantung dress, laughed gaily as she stepped onto a decorated pier to be welcomed by the governor of the Leeward islands, Sir Kenneth Blackburne, and Lady Blackburne.

She came to St. John's harbor on the royal yacht Britannia, after a 300-mile cruise from Bridgetown, Barbados.

The sun shone brightly as Princess Margaret stepped into an open touring car. Sitting under a parasol, she waved and smiled at cheering, flag- waving Antiguans gathered along the main street of the port city to greet her.

20,000 ATTEND

Some 20,000 people attended a rally shortly before noon.

The princess, in her speech at the rally, expressed regret she was unable to visit Montserrat.

Antigua, she said, has a history "imperishably connected with the Royal Navy and with our greatest sailor, Nelson. I suppose there are few places that conjure up the spirit of that great man more vividly than the English Harbor which I am so much looking forward to seeing tomorrow morning.

"The people of Antigua may well be proud of that enduring monument. It must certainly inspire all of us, and especially her children, with that spirit of adventure of which we have as great a need today, as ever before."

Nelson commanded English Harbor 1786-87.

The princess attended a garden party at Government House in the afternoon, and dined privately there Monday night.

Woman Doctor Found Guilty Of Lover's Murder

DUNEDIN, New Zealand (Reuters)—A jury early today found blonde Dr Senga Whittingham, 27, not guilty of murder of the doctor-lover she shot to death last year.

The jurors decided that Dr. Whittingham had accidentally killed Dr. John W. Saunders, 27, at a hospital party. The prosecution had alleged that she aborted a child by him in a desperate bid to regain his love.

The jurors returned after seven hours of deliberations to announce a verdict of manslaughter, and to recommend that the judge be as lenient as possible.

During the six days of the trial, the prosecution gave this story of the drama that led to the killing:

Dr. Whittingham and Dr. Saunders became engaged in May, 1953. The engagement was broken four months later when it was clear that Dr. Whittingham was not going to bear the child she had been expecting.

In a letter to Dr. Saunders' mother, Mrs. Jo Saunders, she wrote that she had performed an abortion on herself so she could start life "free and happy." She added: "When I had done it, I found Bill did not want me any more . . . I really love Bill, but I feel I could kill him for this. . ."

The defence lawyer contended that the rifle had been fired accidentally, with no intent to kill.

The judge promised to give full weight to the jury's plea for leniency when the sentence is passed Friday.

Eden Says China "Must" Be Represented

LONDON (Reuters) — Foreign Secretary Eden said Monday Nationalist China "must" be represented at any international conferChina at any international conference to settle the Formosa problem.

Eden addressed the House of Commons shortly after Prime Minister Nehru of India told newspaper men in Paris he thought Russia's proposal for a 10-nation conference on Formosa is "a good suggestion."

However, he too suggested Nationalist China should be represented. Any such conference, he said, "obviously cannot exclude any party concerned."

Soviet Foreign Minister Molotov, who 10 days ago proposed the conference to the British and Indian envoys in Moscow, discussed the question again Monday with P. N. Kaul, India's charge d'affaires in the Soviet capital.

No details were available but diplomatic circles in Moscow said Formosa consultations were "proceeding."

Molotov's plan called for a meeting outside the United Nations of the four major powers, Communist China and the "Colombo powers" —India, Pakistan, Ceylon, Burma and Indonesia. It would exclude Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek's government.

French government sources said in Paris Monday the proposal seemed unlikely to be realized unless the Chinese Nationalists are invited.

A Moscow radio commentator said Monday that Formosa belonged to the Chinese mainland government "before Colombus discovered America and long before there was a United States of America."

He added that only those who have "lost all their senses" could have expected Communist China to accept New Zealand's call for United Nations talks on a Formosa cease-fire.

Strasser Beset By Weather And Politics

MONTREAL (CP)—Otto Strasser, whose path to his German homeland has been beset by many obstacles, is finding the Canadian winter can be almost as powerful as politics.

Canadian National Railways reported that the train the one-time Nazi bigwig boarded at Halifax Saturday probably would not reach here until 1 a.m. EST, instead of 8 p.m. Monday night as earlier estimated. The train was blocked by snow drifts near Mont Joli, Que., for more than 24 hours.

Strasser, en route to West Germany after years of efforts to get a passport, has been repeatedly delayed by weather since leaving Paradise, N.S., where he lived since the Second World War.

Strasser worked closely with Hitler in the early years of his rise to power but fled for his life after a break in policy with the dictator. He has repeatedly stated he abhorred the Nazi state as ultimately developed by Hitler.

Russian Furs Big Import

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada bought $586,558 worth of undressed fur skins from Russia between Nov. 1, 1953, and Nov. 30, 1954, the trade department said Monday.

A return tabled in the Commons for Maj.-Gen. G. R. Pearkes (PC—Esquimalt - Saanich) showed the skins included fox, kolinsky, mink, persian lamb and squirrel. The skins entered duty free but there was no record of Canadian pur-

Skunks... Dogs.. He Screams

NEW YORK — AP — A clothing salesman, screaming and in tears, claimed Monday that eight detectives tried to beat him into confessing the murder of co-ed Ann Yarrow. One of the detectives is a deputy inspector.

"Crumbs. . .skunks. . .dogs!" Angelo Morelli branded the police as he went free in $10,000 bond as a material witness in the sex slaying.

Police called him their No. 1 suspect in the Feb. 6 slaying when he was put behind bars last Thursday for further questioning. However, the 27-year-old Morelli denied he even knew the New York university coed.

Morelli was met by reporters as he walked out of Bronx city jail. He previously had written a letter to a newspaper claiming he was third-degreed. Asked Monday to name names, Morelli cried:

"Bradt, Bradt. I'm sure Bradt. I'm sure he was one of them."

Deputy inspector John J. Bradt, Jr., one of the top investigators into the brutal murder of the 23-year-old girl, later told reporters: "I deny it emphatically."

Bradt previously had denied that any of his detectives beat or abused Morelli.

Miss Yarrow was strangled, raped and stabbed 37 times. Her nearly-nude body was found in an ill-furnished, borrowed apartment on the fringe of Greenwich Village.

Bank Manager Stands Trial On Fraud Charge

SAINT JOHN, N.B. (CP)—A former manager of the provincial bank here, If Reginald Delaney Monday was committed to stand trial on a fraud charge involving "unlawfully making or concurring in making false entries or omissions in bank records." He elected trial by jury and will appear before country court judge Reginald D. Keirstead Feb. 22.

Three witnesses, all provincial bank officials, testified for the prosecution during the preliminary hearing which concluded Monday.

The charge arose from alleged transferring of monies among bank accounts without authorization. Approximately $40,000 was involved. Delaney is free on bail of $20,000.

Dulles To Visit Ottawa

By GEORGE KITCHEN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON (CP)—The state department announced Monday that State Secretary Dulles will visit Ottawa March 17 to 19 for three days of talks with Canadian government leaders.

Official sources here said the visit will be in the nature of a "goodwill" trip, rather than a specific journey to discuss a specific problem. No agenda has yet been drafted.

The brief state department announcement merely said that Dulles will spend three days in Ottawa as the guest of Governor-General Massey. He will stay at Government House.

"Further details of his visit will be announced in due course," the announcement added.

It will be Dulles' first official visit to Canada.

State department sources said there is no particular significance in the fact that the visit follows by a month a trip to Washington by Canadian leaders to discuss trade and other economic problems with Dulles and other American officials.

TRADE DISCUSSIONS

On that visit, the Canadian delegation included External Affairs Minister Pearson, Trade Minister Howe and Finance Minister Harris.

However, it was conceded likely that the trade and economic problems would get another going-over during the visit of Dulles in Ottawa along with other matters of common interest to the two countries.

A state department spokesman said that the visit basically would be along the same lines as the goodwill trips made to Ottawa in the past by President Eisenhower and former state secretary Dean Acheson.

"It will be based primarily on the recognition of the common interest and goodwill we have with Canada," the spokesman added.

Dispute Over Sunday Sport

HORNEPAYNE, Ont. (CP)—A dispute over Sunday commercial sport shaped up Monday in this tiny northern Ontario community, following cancellation of a hockey game Sunday.

Capreol Juveniles travelled 300 miles for the two-game, weekend series and trimmed Hornepayne Panthers 8-3 Saturday night. The Sunday game was cancelled as the teams were warming up.

"What kind of a dirty deal is this?" asked Capreol coach Eli Martal, a high school student.

The game was stopped by town constable Don Haggerty on complaint of a citizen, he refused to name. The citizen threatened prosecution under the Lord's Day Act.

Mayor Bill Woodhouse took to the ice to calm the hooging crowd. The law had to be obeyed, he said. Otherwise, it meant a $50 fine.

Angry citizens immediately started a petition designed to bring a plebiscite on the question. A protest meeting was planned for this week. The petitiontion would need signatures of 10 per cent of voters before a plebiscite could be authorized. Council is expected to deal with the question at its next meeting March 8.

Income Tax: Knowles Repeats Bid For Complete Medical Exemption

OTTAWA—CP—Stanley Knowles Monday put in his annual bid that medical expenses be made deductible "from the first dollar" in computing personal income tax.

The CCF member for Winnipeg North Centre described as grossly unfair the present regulation which permits deduction of medical expenses only above three per cent of total income.

He won support for his motion from the Progressive Conservative and Social Credit groups.

Mr. Knowles said there is no limitation on deductions for repairs to business properties, machinery and fishing equipment.

But it was a different story when it came to repairs for the human body.

GREATEST ASSET

He quoted Health Minister Martin as saying that the greatest national asset is the health of Canadians. Surely, he said, humans should be given at least as much consideration as buildings, machinery and fishing equipment.

Mr. Knowles also said the definition of medical expenses for income tax purposes is too narrow. Many expenses associated with illness were not deductible.

Mr. Knowles said the taxpayer should receive the same deductions on medical expenses as on charitable donations.

Because of the delay in establishment of a national health insurance plan, it was "all the more imperative" that medical expenses be made fully deductible from the first dollar.

It might cost the government $30,000,000 or $35,000,000 but this money could be raised in a fairer way.

BROADEN DEFINITION

Henry Murphy (L — Westmorland) suggested the definition of medical expenses be broadened rather than the three-per-cent floor be removed.

Rev. E. G. Hansell (SC—Macleod) and Mrs. Ellen Fairclough (PC—Hamilton West) supported Mr. Knowles.

William Benidickson, parliamentary assistant to Finance Minister Harris, opposed the resolution because he said abolition of the floor would cost the government about $50,000,000 in revenue, thus denying the possibility of tax cuts elsewhere.

He said abolition of the floor would not help Canadians who do not earn enough to pay income tax.

Bulganin Pledges Aid To Commie China

MOSCOW (Reuters)—Nicolai Bulganin, Russia, new premier, Monday night pledged that Soviet aid for Communist China "will be forthcoming whenever necessary."

"We of the Soviet government came here this evening to wish you further success, success in your troubles against those who attempt to hinder your progress.

"China knows it can look to us not only for sympathy but for help. This help will be forthcoming whenever necessary."

The reception was given at Moscow's metropole Hotel and was attended by 700 guests.

Search For Missing Plane

ROME (Reuters) — Ships and land parties pressed a search Monday night for a Belgian airliner missing since Sunday night with 29 persons on board.

United States and Italian planes returned to their bases after vainly scouring the region north of Rome throughout the day. But 1,000 land and sea searchers carried out an all - night hunt for the missing plane, whose passengers included four Americans and beautiful Marcella Mariana, 18, "Miss Italy 1953."

They concentrated their search in the Viterbo area, where inhabitants Sunday night reported hearing the roar of a plane and then smelling the odor of something burning at about 8 p. m.

Meanwhile, an Italian Navy corvette circled off the Italian coast south of Civita Vecchia where a large patch of oil was sighted Monday. The slick might tell the airliner's fate, or merely turn out to have been left by a passing ship.

The Belgian Sabena Super DC-6 airliner disappeared after sending a last, interrupted message—"it is raining hard, but I think—." It reported it was 60 miles north of Rome and expected to land in 20 minutes.

The plane was flying from Brussels, via Rome and Nigeria, to Leopoldsville in the Belgian Congo.

A little girl was hit and knocked down, but not seriously injured on Hamilton Street yesterday. Taken to hospital, it was found on examination that her injuries were not serious and she was taken home again.

U.S. To Defend Quemoy?

TAIPEI, Formosa—AP—Speculation rose Monday over whether the United States would help defend Matsu and Quemoy after President Chiang Kai-shek declared the islands never would be abandoned.

The U. S. 7th Fleet, which covered the peaceful withdrawal from the Tachen islands north of Formosa, was returning to patrol stations around Formosa and to other Far East bases.

There was no confirmation here of Peiping radio's boast that the Communists Sunday "liberated" the Tachens, 200 miles north of Formosa.

It was considered likely the "liberation" consisted of a small landing party from nearby Red islets. The Tachens were scorched before they were abandoned and nothing of value was left.

BOAT CONCENTRATIONS

There were more reports of Communist boat concentrations near the Matsus, off the coast 100 miles northwest of Formosa, but there was no indication of any intent to invade. Such concentrations are usual.

President Chiang predicted at a press conference, however, that occupation of the Tachens would make the Reds "more adventurous." His interpreter said Chiang meant the Communists would try to attack Formosa.

Peiping radio in a follow-up broadcast to its "liberation" announcement asserted the Nationalist "abducted" Tachen civilians "assisted by American armed forces." Many refugees told correspondents they were leaving because they did not want to live under the Communists.

VERY CLEAR

Chiang in answer to a question declared: "As a matter of fact, whether Kinmen (Quemoy) and Matsu, when they are attacked, will be jointly defended by the United States and our government or not is actually very clear to us, also to the Communists; and it is also very clearly said in (President) Eisenhower's statement."

Washington sources have said that the United States considers Quemoy and Matsu important for Formosa's defence as long as Red China insists it intends to seize Formosa.

Some observers in Taipei said U. S. reluctance to make a firm commitment on the two island position may be because of tactical difficulties.

WELCOME, BUCHANS

We have some special weather this morning for the Buchans hockey team. The wind is blowing from the west, and the temperature is 15 degrees, which should make them feel as if they had never left home. Although they were frozen out last night. However, "townies" will be glad to know that the temperature will rise today. It will rise three degrees to reach a sweltering 18, the Torbayman says. In case you're interested, it will be sunny today, but don't make plans for an outing at Topsail Beach.

Canada At Limit On Defence Commitments

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister St. Laurent said Monday he does not believe Canada can take on additional defence commitments at this time.

He was replying to opposition questions after reporting to the Commons on the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in London earlier this month.

The prime minister said there is little he could add to what was contained in the communique issued by the prime ministers after the conference.

Hon. Earl Rowe, acting opposition leader, said he was surprised the prime minister's report was so brief.

Then John Diefenbaker, foreign affairs spokesman for the Conservatives, asked about press reports of the conference which had referred to a "more equitable distribution in defence efforts" among the Commonwealth members.

WARNING NEEDED

Mr. St. Laurent said he had told the other prime ministers:

". . . Developments in thermonuclear weapons and in the method of delivery had brought home to us the need of providing a warning system on the American continent which . . . would have to be largely on Canadian territory.

"We felt that it was necessary to have that early warning system as one of the components of the deterrent effect of these weapons so that any potential enemy would realize that even a surprise attack would not make retaliation impossible.

"I added that our part in the establishment of such a system would place a heavy load on the Canadian people; that a large part of the financial burden would be borne by the United States but that Canada must play her part.

"It was most important that these things done on Canadian soil be a joint operation and be dealt with as such . . . .

STRESSES BALANCE

"I did say that I felt that both the Canadian and American people would wish to feel regarding this essential part of the shield and deterrent against war that there was a proper balance being maintained between what we were doing in Europe and what was being done on our own continent . . . .

"With reference to the assertion made that Canada was a wealthy country, I pointed out there were limits beyond which we could not go and I felt out people would support any government in carrying what was considered its proper share in building up these joint defences.

"But I also pointed out that care had to be taken to maintain a proper balance in the manner in which expenditure was made and that I did not think we were in a position where we could take on additional commitments in regard to these defences."

Mr. Diefenbaker said it had been suggested Canada contribute forces to a strategic Commonwealth reserve of airborne troops and that Australia and New Zealand had agred to give one division for service outside their countries. He asked whether Mr. St. Laurent had taken a stand against this on behalf of Canada.

The prime minister said:

". . . I do not remember anything that would justify the statement that we took a stand against what was being done by others.

COMMITMENTS WIDE

"I believe we have wider commitments outside our own country and more air and land forces stationed outside this country, in proportion to population, than any other of the Commonwealth countries except perhaps the United Kingdom itself."

Earlier, in his report on the conference, the prime minister said:

"While the superiority of the Western world in nuclear weapons now is probably our most important single deterrent against war, nevertheless, we recognize that this is a wasting asset and that peace must ultimately rest on a better and most lasting foundation."

Mr. St. Laurent reiterated that Canada wants to see the fighting stopped in the Formosa straits and then to seek a political settlement by negotiaiton.

"I should also like once more to emphasize this: Canada has no commitments of any kind in respect of the Formosa area except those which arise out of our membership in the United Nations."

ANNUAL MEETING LOCAL ASSOCIATION

The Buchans Girl Guides Local Association held its annual meeting at the Lady Walwyn Hut on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 25, under the chairmanship of Mrs. E. M. Martin. Following the presentation of annual reports, the election of officers took place with Mrs. W. A. Dawe in the chair. The new officers are: President, Mrs. R. Colyer; Vice President, Mrs. E. M. Martin; Secretary, Mrs. P. F. O'Brien; Assistant Secretary, Mrs. W. Higgins; Treasurer, Mrs. W. H. Pike; Asst. Treasurer, Mrs. A. M. Guy; Badge Officer, Mrs. A. A. Andrews; Public Relations Officer, Mrs. W. H. Maher; Camp Convenor, Mrs. D. W. White; Social Convenor, Mrs. C. E. Nelson; Cookie Day Convenor, Mrs. W. Higgins; Local Association Representative, Mrs. P. F. O'Brien.

FLYING UP CEREMONY

At the Flying Up ceremony of the 1st Buchans Brownie Pack, Brownies Ruth Dawe and Lillian Kelloway received their Golden Hands and Brownie Wings from the District Commissioner, Mrs. Dawe, and Brown Owl Maureen Carroll sent the two Brownies up to the 1st Guide Company. They were received by two Patrol Leaders, Violet Thorne and Loretta Yetman, and taken to Mrs. A. Mullins, Captain, who welcomed them to the Company. The Brownies gave their Grand Howl as a special goodbye and entertained the Guides with songs before leaving the Hut through their magic tunnel.

Brownie ceremonies also took place in the 2nd Pack, which met at the Girl Guide Hut at 6 p.m. for supper with their Brown Owl, Mrs. James Kennedy. At seven o'clock they were joined by the 2nd Guide Company. Before the Flying Up ceremony the Commissioner presented Golden Bars to Margaret Lyver, Joan Walsh, Angela Gorman, Judy Guy and Margaret Taylor. Then, while Brownies stood in a circle, and Guides in a horseshoe, the Commissioner pinned Golden Hands and Wings on eight Brownies—Kay Walsh, Mary Elizabeth Maher, Gertrude Makinson, Shirley Byrne, Helen O'Toole, Teresa Carroll, Madonna Carroll, and Madona St. George. After they flew up to the Guide Company they were received by their new patrol leaders, Sheilagh Martin, Clara Moore and Marie Head, and welcomed by the Guide Captain, Mrs. J. R. Flynn. The ceremony closed with the singing of the National Anthem. Special guests were Mrs. W. H. Maher, Public Relations Officer, and Mrs. P. F. O'Brien, Secretary of the Local Association.

SYMPATHY EXTENDED

News of the death of Mr. James Yetman at Western Memorial Hospital on January 31st was received with deepest sorrow by a large circle of friends at Buchans. Mr. Yetman came to the mining town in 1931 where he was employed in the Company's Lucky Strike mine until 1945 when he and his family moved to Corner Brook. During those 14 years his gentlemanly characteristics and christian qualities earned for him a very warm place in the hearts of his associates. He took an active part in the affairs of St. Teresa's parish, of which he was a staunch member, and could be counted on to lend support in any parochial enterprise. The Yetman home at Buchans was one where friends were always made welcome, and the same spirit of hospitality and friendliness was maintained during the past decade at Corner Brook. To his sorrowing widow, and all members of the family, sincerest sympathy in the loss of a loving husband and father is extended

The first session of the ladies' desser bridge club for 1955 took place at the Staff House Saturday afternoon, Jan. 29. Hostesses were Mesdames Carolyn Nelson, Aileen MacDonald, Olive Dawe and Tene Evans. After refreshments had been served and before starting the game, Mrs. O'Brien read a letter from James Thorne, Staff House chef, in which he gratefully acknowledged the Club's Christmas gift of a beautiful clock, presented to him in appreciation of the many courtesies extended to the ladies during the past year. Prizes for first and second highest scores were won by Mrs. O'Brien and Mrs. Swanson respectively, while the consolation prize was awarded to Mrs. R. Colyer.

PERSONALS

Mr. and Mrs. James Collins and their children, Katherine, Franklyn and Dermot, returned on Feb. 3rd from Corner Brook where they attended the funeral services of Mrs. Collins' father, the late James Yetman.

Lloyd Soper, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Soper, returned Thursday from Winnipeg, Manitoba, where he had been studying navigation with the R.C.A.F. Due to a sinus condition Lloyd was obliged to discontinue his training and has accepted employment in the mining department of the Buchans Mining Co., pending plans for his future career.

Dr. N. Budgell, veterinary surgeon of Corner Brook, paid a professional visit to Buchans last week. He was accompanied by Mrs. Budgell and their four year old son Ralph.

Mrs. Lemuel Best of Buchans Junction who had been receiving medical treatment at Buchans Hospital returned home Monday.

W. Pryde, District Manager of Canadian Industries Ltd. at St. John's, recently paid a business visit to Buchans where he was a guest at the Staff House.

Norman Cuff has returned to his duties at the Accounting Office of the Buchans Mining Co., following 10 days' hospitlaization at Buchans.

Miss Sylvia Greening, formerly of Buchans, arrived from Moncton, N.B., recently to visit friends and relatives at the mining town, Millertown Junction and Millertown.

Mrs. Neil McIsaac is receiving the sympathy of her friends on the recent death of her mother, Mrs. J. D. MacDonald, at St. Rita's Hospital, Sydney, N.S. Mrs. McIsaac, who spent the past three weeks at Sydney, returned home Feb. 3.

Sympathy is also extended to Mrs. Albert Gregory on the death of her father, Robert Patterson. Mrs. Gregory and her son Michael who went to Placentia for the funeral services returned to Buchans last week.

Winston Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Carter, who was recently operated on at Buchans Hospital has now returned home.

Snow Helps Tulips

OTTAWA (CP) — Outside the heated office the thermometer showed 20 below zero, but Walker Bowker, public relations officer for the federal district commission, was thinking of spring flowers.

The snow was five feet deep and frost was thick on the windows, but Bowker was dreaming of tulips, daffodils, crocuses—acres of them.

"We've got a million of them," he murmured dreamily. "We have a million tulips ready to go into the ground. Thanks to the heavy snowfall, tulips should be better than ever this spring."

"As to crocuses, there will be a veritable carpet of them in pretty pastel shades around the National War Memorial. Photographers will enjoy the new variety on the east slope of the (Parliament Buildings') east block."

He was silent a moment while his thoughts skipped off to fragrant daffodils. "Why down at Rockcliffe rockery," he said at last, "we have three solid acres of yellow daffodils." And then, as though he could barely contain himself a second longer, he all but cried:

Oh wind, if winter comes
"Can spring be far behind?"
No one stayed to answer.

Less Dancing, More Science

PORT ALBERNI, B.C. (CP)—More emphasis on mathematics and science and less on dancing and similar subjects in schools was urged by Dr. Gordon M. Shrum in an address here.

Dr. Shrum, head of the University of British Columbia physics department, said shortage of trained personnel is the real bottleneck in research for the production of atomic energy for peacetime use.

"In Russia there is a university student for every 150 persons while in Canada the ratio is one in 250," he said.

More students would be recruited for university training if schools placed more emphasis on the teaching of mathematics and science.

Atomic energy provided the greatest promise to take care of a growing world population, he said. It would increase the Western standard of living and aid in raising the standard in other parts of the world.

Ward Off Coughs

Is winter made miserable for you because of a steady succession of coughs and colds? If you seem to have a weakness for these irritating and exhausting infections, why not let your family doctor give you a complete examination. Persistent coughs and colds often indicate the beginning of something more serious and early detection frequently means quicker, surer cures.

Ice-Boating On The Wane

TRENTON, Ont. (CP)—Milder Canadian winters may be the cause, but enthusiasts here see the approaching end of a once popular Canadian sport—ice-boating.

The ungainly craft that skim the ice at high speed were once seen in great numbers at this town, where the Bay of Quinte meets Lake Ontario. This winter, there is only one iceb-oat.

Eben James, manager of a cold-storage plant, still sails the craft that he received as a boyhood birthday present.

But he says mild weather and bumpy ice are killing the sport. He describes one recent trip over rough ice when his craft leapfrogged and bounced so much that "I was in the air more than I was on the ice."

The trip was really uncomfortable, since ice-boats reach well over 60 miles an hour even with slight winds.

"When I was a boy, many people used to own and operate ice boats here. Now there's usually not enough ice and it doesn't last long enough."

Guard Baby Against Infection

The baby of today has a fortunate heritage of health. His parents in their infancy were more in danger of those major ills that often took the lives of babies and even more often left them with some impairtment. There wasn't muvh that mothers in those days could do to protect infants because there was then no popular method of preventing diseases like whooping cough, diphthier and tetanus. Today immunization is a "must" for every child. Wriet to "Health Education Office", Department of Health, St. John's for the free pamphlet "To Parents about immunization".

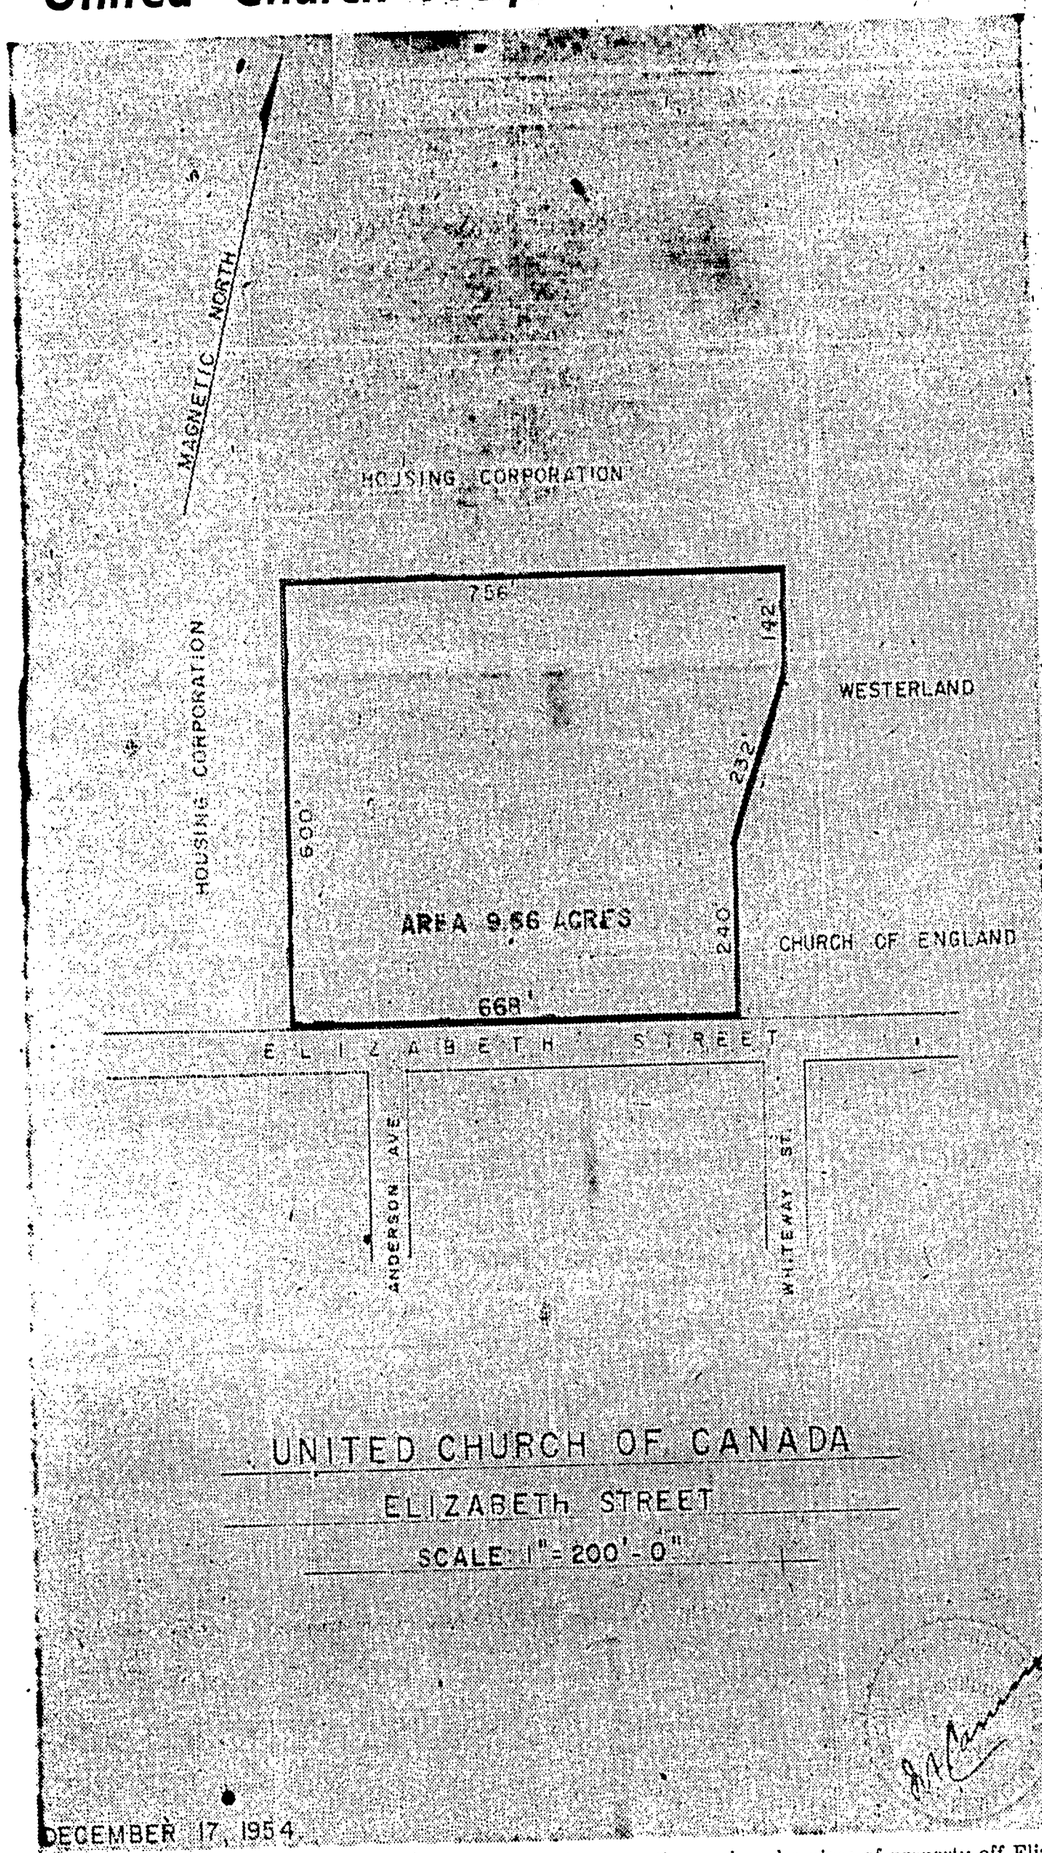
United Church Acquires New Property



The St. John's Presbytry of the United Church of Canada has recently purchased a piece of property off Elizabeth Avenue, where they plan to erect a church and parsonage and other church buildings. The property has a frontage of 668 ft. on the North side of Eliabeth Avenue beginning just west of Anderson Avenue and stretching over to the west of Whiteway Street. The west side of the property runs in a straight line north for 600 feet, and on the east side borders the Westerland farm, and has a rearage of 756 feet, running east and west.

Dragger Reports Trying Experience

Loses Rudder On Grand Banks; Is Towed To Burin

Burin yesterday saw the dragger "Zarp" come into port with the rudder-less dragger "Nordeaster" in tow, after a harrowing yet thrilling tale of their ride through rough North Atlantic seas and snow and rain storms.

The Nordeaster lost her rudder on Monday, while fishing on the Grand Banks. The Zarp immediately came to her assistance and tried to get a tow line aboard.

Even after she succeeded in this, on several occasions the tow line broke in the rough seas Eventually one was secured and the Zarp tried to get the Nordeaster into Renews. But this proved iposnible because of heavy seas and fogs lying off that section of the coastline.

So a decision was made to take the Nordeaster to Burin and both ships arrived there at eight o'clock yesterday morning.

Meanwhile, it is understood that a diver will now inspect the ships rudder. It will then be decided whether repairs are to be made at Burin.

St. Raphael's Association

The ladies of St. Raphael's Parish formed an Association last Tuesday night at a meeting which was held in the library of Mount Cashel Boys' Home. Rev. Brother Carroll presided at the meeting.

Mrs. Mary Sloan was elected president, Mrs. Edith Power, vice-president, Mrs. Lillian Lawlor, secretary and Mrs. Eileen Daly treasurer.

The newly formed organization held a card party on Friday night at Mount Cashel dining room and many attractive prizes were won for this first party, which proved to be a financial and social success.

The association plans to hold a card party with refreshments every Friday night at Mount Cashel, and members of the Parish are urged by the Association to patronize their efforts.

This is a particularly busy section of roadway and every motorists is asked to cooperate to the full.

Loads Cargo Of Newsprint

The S.S. Caxton is still loading the first cargo of newsprint for England and her arrival here has provided a fillup to work along the waterfront.

The A.N.D., of course, is now sending forward all newsprint through this port.

Tows Schooner To Port Here

The M.V. Glenwood arrived this port Sunday with the schooner "James Strong" in tow. The auxiliary ran into some weather conditions on her way north and had to be towed back to this port.

COLLISION

A car entering LeMarchant Road from Freshwater Road was reported in collision with a parked car there. However, no one was injured and only slight damage was reported.

Rains Flood Streets

Cars reported that water was up to their fenders on the Thorburn Road, following Saturday's and Sunday's rainstorm. Small cars practically found their floorboards awash, one man said and indicated that many a small car driven turned back and chose another route rather than go on through the water.

Prince Bernhard At Gander

Prince Bernhard of the Netherlands arrived at Gander at 4 a.m. NST yesterday morning, en route to New York for talks which are expected to bring about a basis for future discussions between the United States and Holland.

At Gander, Prince Bernhard was greeted by Mr. Frank Stirling, Newfoundland manager for K.L.M. and taken to the Hotel Jupiter, where refreshments were served in suite especially set aside for His Royal Highness.

Driver Injured

A driver of one of three cars received an ankle injury in a collision on Torbay Road Sunday night. Damages to two of the vehicles was said to be heavy while the other vehicle was only scraped a bit.

Magistrate's Court:

Many Charges Disposed Of

A full docket kept the Magistrate's Court busy on Monday morning. Magistrate Mulcahy heard two cases of failing to file income tax returns. The first case was fined $25 and 50 cents costs. The second was fined $200 or 30 days for failing to give certain information required in filling out returns.

A woman charged with being drunk in public was fined $10. She was picked up by the police at 12:45 a.m. on February 13th.

Some amusement was caused in the court by one man accused of being drunk on the street. He pleaded not guilty, though the constable gave evidence that when he arrived on the scene, near the Royal Bank, the defendent was being held up by another man. The defendant, entering the witness box, murmured, "do they think I'm all the time drunk", and as he gave his evidence told how he only got out of jail on Thursday, "and how could I get drunk," by passing the bond store?", he asked. He admitted to having a drink of wine, but said that the reason he could not stand up was because he had a bad back. The case was dismissed by Magistrate O'Neill.

Two men arrested for drunkenness on the street during the weekend pleaded guilty and were fined $10 and $2 respectively.

A motorist arrested for having control of a vehicle while intoxicated appeared before the bar. He was represented by counsel, J. G. Higgins, Q.C., and his case was postponed until February 22nd. The man was allowed to keep the license until his case is heard.

A young man charged with robbery with violence appeared in the court and had his case heard. The police constable on duty said that on the night in question he received a call to go to 47 Duckworth Street, and found a man lying on the ground just a little east of the building. He saw two men on the southside of the street going east and gave chase. He captured one but the victim said that this was not the man. The constable gave chase to the second man and finally caught him when he hid between a storm door and the inside door of a house. The man answered the description and had a cut on his left hand when caught. When taken to the police station the man had $4.00 in his pocket and dropped two pennies in the police van on the way. He also had a Ronson lighter and an eyeglass lens in his pocket. As the victim of the assault is still in the hospital the accused was remanded for 8 days. His request for bail was refused, and he was asked by Magistrate O'Neill to renew his request in the court today.

Francis Foley, now serving sentence in the penitentiary for theft, appeared in the court to answer to the charge of stealing a windbreaker from a boarding house on Water Street West. The landlady and the maid in the house gave evidence that the accused came to the boarding house on January 13th. went to a room on the third floor and took a suit of clothes and a windbreaker, but dropped the suit of clothes on the way downstairs when he knew that he was being watched Both witnesses said that when the man came downstairs he stopped and asked for a light for his cigarette and said that he wanted to see a Mr. Furlong, who was supposed to be staying in the house. No man of that name was there the landlady said, and she did not give him a light. Both witnesses identified the accused in the court after carefully scrutinizing the people in the courtroom. Foley said that he wanted to call a witness and the case was postponed until Thursday at 10.30 a.m.

A man arrested for being disorderly at the Harbour Inn, had his case dismissed for drunkenness as he was not in a public place at the time of his arrest, but on request of the bartender, who claimed that he had orders not to serve the accused, and that the man had grabbed him and torn his shirt. Magistrate O'Neill ordered the accused to sign a bond of $100 to be on good behavior and to remain away from the premises.

True Love:

Boy And Girl And Other Boy

That the course of true love never runs smoothly was shown in the magistrate's court on Monday morning when a young farmer of Kilbride, who bringing his lady companion from a dance at Petty Harbour on February 10th, got three punches in the nose from a former boy friend of the girl, and had his windshield broken with a bottle hurled at the car by a companion of the aggrieved but spurned lover.

The farmer had one man before the court for assault, and the Magistrate ordered the accused to sign a bond of $200, and placed him on suspended sentence for 2 years to keep the peace and be on his good behaviour, and to pay compensation of $16 and costs of $2.30.

The young man, who hurled the bottle, and broke the windshield was convicted of the charge, and was told by Magistrate O'Neill that this was pure savagery, and a vicious attack on a young man, a farmer, who works hard to earn his living. He was fined $50 or 1 month, and costs of $2.30 or 1 day. Both the accused were represented by Mr. J. O'Neill as counsel.

Miss Jane Coole:

Faithfull Servant Of Bond Passes

End Of An Era

HALIFAX, N.S.—A career of unusual faithfulness in the service of one family has ended with the passing of Miss Jane Coole, who died Thursday, February 10th., at the age of 90 years. Miss Coole spent her entire working life time—a span of over seventy years—with her first and only employers, the Bond family of Newfoundland.

Miss Coole was born in Bonavista, the daughter of the late John Coole and Mary Ann Ayles Coole, and at the age of eighteen came to St. John's and entered the home of the Rev. Dr. George J. Bond and Mrs. Bond as one of their domestics. With the Bonds, she went to Halifax in 1890, and some twelve years later moved with them to Toronto. When Mrs. Bond died there leaving an infant daughter, who is now Dr. Roberta Bond Nichols of Halifax, Miss Coole devoted her whole attention to the infant's care. When in 1927, on the death of the Right Honourable Sir Robert Bond, the family estate, "The Grange" Whitbourne, passed to his nephew, Dr. F. Fraser Bond of New York, Miss Coole went to "The Grange" as housekeeper. Known as "Jane" to a succession of governors and other distinguished visitors, she won the respect of all by her personality, her competence and her faithfulness.

In 1948, Dr. Fraser Bond paid her a public tribute in an address before the Rotary Club of St. John's, broadcast throughout the island. He spoke on the outstanding personalities he had encountered in his professional career, and ended his talk by saying:

"I have been opening for you today a few of the pages in my personal 'Who's Who'. Let me close with the name of a Newfoundlander unknown to fame, who has a very glowing entry in my personal volume. Her name is Jane Coole, who years before I was born came from Bonavista to work for my family. She is still with us. Sixty-five years of service to one family must constitute a record and one worthy of note for it not only symbolizes the end of an era, but also, alas, the end of an attitude. This concept of faithful and unselfish service seems to be passing from the world.

"Centuries ago, Mary of England said that when she came to die, the name of the town of Calais would be found written on her heart. Now, although we have never been to Bonavista, I know that my sister and myself have the name of that place engraved in our affections along with that of Jane Coole who for so many long years has been such a faithful friend to us and to ours."

Border Poems

(L. C. M.)

A few years ago it was our privelege to attend the wedding of Mr. Martin O'Grady, of St. John's, to Miss Betty Whyte, a native of Broughty Ferry, and at the Reception held afterwards, pleasant memories of Carnoustie, Barry Camp, Dundee, and other sections of Scotland, were revived among those Veterans present, who spent some time in training in these areas while the Newfoundland Regiment was stationed in Auld Scotia. Hawick, Selkirk and Roxburgshire are as familiar to our Newfoundland soldiers of the First Great War as Norwich, to the Gunners, Plymouth to the Sailors and the Air Depots to our gallant flyingmen in the Second terrible conflict.

It was, therefore, a thoughtful gesture on the part of a great friend of the Kirk who sent me last week a collection of poems by Alexander Buist, who is now living at Roxburgshire, at the old home of Lady John Scott, the poetess who set "Annie Laurie" to music.

Entitled "The Gleam and the Dark" there is a reflection of mood throughout all the writings, and especially is this shown in "The Wise Gardener:"

"There is a beauty of courage, a beauty of pain,
Of quiet pride, and noble, fierce disdain,
Beauty of form and outline, of friendly faces,
A sudden gripping beauty, grey beauty of lonely places.
Yet always the song and the silence, the gleam and the dark.
Lure of the next adventure, the storm-spent bark,
Always the more pursuit, and the less content,
Always the much ado, and the fine force spent."

How much, one wonders, does Mr. Buist owe to Longfellow?

Altogether, from our limited knowledge, we would say a very worthwhile contribution to contemporary poetry, especially when one knows most of the scenic back ground of the Border Country which furnished the inspiration.

IN THE KITCHEN

Getting Ready

Mrs. R. F. Morris, Canada Experimental Station, near St. John's, Nfld., cracks an egg into a bowl preparatory to making her delicious partridgeberry pudding.

Try Mrs. R. F. Morris's Partridgeberry Pudding

PARTRIDGEBERRY PUDDING

2 cups flour
4 tsp. baking powder
¼ cup butter
¼ tsp. salt
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
About 1½ cups partridge berries

Sift together flour, baking powder and salt. Cream butter and sugar, add well beaten eggs, then the dry ingredients and partridge berries. Put in a greased pudding bowl and steam for 2 hours. Serve with lemon sauce.

P.S. Blueberries may be used in place of partridge berries.

DATE AND NUT COOKIES

1 cup brown sugar
½ cup butter
2 eggs
2 cups flour
1 tsp. baking soda
½ cup nuts (chopped)
1 pkg. dates (chopped)
1 tsp. vanilla
Pinch of salt

Cream sugar and butter. Add eggs, dates, nuts and vanilla, then add the sifted dry ingredients. Drop by spoonfuls on a greased cookie sheet. Bake in a moderate oven till done.

OLD FASHIONED MOLASSES CAKE

2/3 cup butter
2 eggs
1 cup molasses
1 cup brown or white sugar
2 tsp. ginger
1 tsp. cinnamon
1 tsp. cloves
¼ tsp. nutmeg
1 cup sour milk, or
½ cup sweet milk
1 tsp. making soda
3 cups flour
¼ tsp. salt

Put butter, sugar and molasses in mixing bowl and set where it will be quite warm for 15 minutes. Add eggs and milk, then add flour, salt, baking soda and spices, which have been sifted together. Bake in a slow oven for about 40 minutes.

DATE AND NUT BREAD

1 pkg. dates
1 tsp. baking soda,
Pinch of salt
1 tbsp. butter
¾ cup sugar

Pour over all 1 cup boiling water, let cool, then add 2 eggs, 1 cup chopped walnuts, 2 cups flour and 2 tsp. baking powder. Bake in moderate oven for 1 hour.

Clean Cups Before Using

Before drinking from restaurant cups or glasses, look carefully for lipsticks or other signs of imperfect washing. Don't drink from any utensil that has not been thoroughly cleansed since previous use. Many disease germs are carried by dirty cups, glasses, plates and tableware. Demand cleanliness when you "eat out".

Choose Your Diet

Many people choose a new hat with more care than they expend on their diet, despite the fact that good dealth is largely dependent up what we eat. Food should be chosen for its nutritional value, cooked carefullly and served attretively. "Meals for one or two" and "Healtiful eating" are bookleas available free of charge by writing to "Health Education Office", Department of Health. St. John's.

Diabetics Are Increase

It is said that two of every five diabetics are unaware that they have the disease. Tests by the doctor or at the clinic will discover diabetes in its earliest stages and thus give the patient an opportunity of taking treatment before the disease becomes really serious, and while it is possible to prevent complications.

If you would like some information on diabetes write to "Health Education Office", Department of Health, St. John's for the free booklet Perhaps You Have Diabetes".

Dog Hair Handbags

COBOURG, Ont. (CP) — Dog hairs may be annoying to most people, especially when found on the living-room rug, but they provide a hobby for Mrs. Lenora Trestrail.

She has been spinning and weaving dog hairs into many beautiful and useful articles for the past eight years. She uses the product for handbags, suiting material and rugs.

She gets the dog hair from various parts of Canada and the United States. Hair from long-haired breeds is the best. After it is washed and dried, she processes it with steel carding combes which pulls the hair into fine strands.

SPINS AND WEAVES

The hair then is spun on a Quebec-made spinning wheel, hand-twisted to the right thickness. For heavy articles such as rugs she twists up to a maximum of nine strands.

"Dog hair makes a soft, warm wool," Mrs. Trestrail said. "It fluffs up nice and doesn't pull off like commercially-spun Angora. It makes marvellous cloth for coats and mittens."

Mrs. Trestrail makes many of her own dyes. The dyes are made from bark of apple, peach and plum as well as different iris plants. Most vegetables and fruits, with the exception of carrots, lend their color to Mrs. Trestrail's dyes.

Since her husband, a motel proprietor, died in 1953 she has been carrying on the business. But her talent on the spinning wheel has brought her wide recognition.

She has appeared on television, given demonstrations at the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto and in the Henry Ford village at Darborn, Mich.

Increase In Heart Disease

An increase in heart disease during the past quarter century may be due to the increased tension and speed at which we live. Many people over forty do not remember that they are no longer teenagers, able to run upstairs and climb hills. If exertion causes shortness of breath, a doctor should be consulted to ascertain the condition of the heart. Information on diseases of the heart may be found in the pamphlet "Heart diseases of all ages" which may be hal free of charge by writing to "Health Education Office", Department of Health, St. John's.

Drinking Water Important

Water is of very great importance to the human body and the intake should be greater than the loss. Even in cold weather, the human body perspires and loses moisture through evaporation. It is considered that the average persons of average weight needs the equivalent of at least 12 glasses of fuuid a day. Too dry atmosphere in heated rooms will cause more water to evaporate from the skin which becomes harsh and scaly. Drinking plenty of water will help to keep the body healthy.

I.O.D.E. Election Of Officers

The annual meeting of Caribou Chapter, I.O.D.E., was held at the Memorial University on Thursday, Feb. 4. Mrs. J. W. Coates, Regent, conducted the meeting. Reports for the past year were presented and received, after which the election of officers for the ensuing year took place and resulted as follows:

Regent—Mrs. G. Russell.
1st Vice Regent—Mrs. Robert Thompson.
2nd Vice Regent—Mrs. R. F. Sparkes.
Secretary—Miss Marjorie Ball.
Asst. Secretary — Mrs. Robert Pike.
Treasurer—Mrs. Grant R. Jack.
Educational Secretary—Mrs. W. J. Keough.
Echoes Secretary—Mrs. W. Collins.
Standard Bearer—Mrs. J. A. Nilsson.
Councillors—Mrs. H. V. Randell, Mrs. R. Oglesby, Mrs. G. G. Lewis, Mrs. C. A. Knight and Mrs. A. Manderson.
Empire and World Affairs—Mrs. Rex Andrews.
Services at Home and Abroad—Mrs. Lewis Brookes.
Press and Publicity—Mrs. Eric Seymour.
Tea Convenor—Mrs. A. Dwyer.
Flower and Gift Convenor—Mrs. J. Breakey.
Membership Convenor—Mrs. J. Stoneman.

The meeting concluded with a social hour.

Worry can be very harmful. Fear of one of the more serious diseases may actually convince a worrying person that he has all the symptoms. It is safest to consult the doctor to discover positively whether or not the disease is present.

Ottawa Report

OTTAWA, Feb. 4—During the past week Newfoundland members have been devoting some time to that weighty blue-bound tome which contains the Canadian estimates of expenditure for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1956, tabled in the Commons on Friday last by Finance Minister Harris.

Of equal interest to MPs from all parts of the province are such important items as the appropriations set out for the completion of the ferry terminal at Port aux Basques and the ferry "William Carson", as well as the provision for financial assistance for the operation of the island's coastal steamship service. The increase of almost half a million dollars for the construction and acquisition of coastal vessels, from $1,410,290 to $1,900,000 also is a source of satisfaction to all alike.

The health grants for Newfoundland, too, are of keen interest to all federal members from the island, but the appropriations for the coming year for public buildings and marine works take top priority in their close study of the fiscal "bible".

Heretofore, there have been numerous revotes included in the public works appropriations for all parts of the country and projects planned have been postponed from one year to another, to the frustration of the representatives of the constituencies concerned. However, it has been stated and emphatically reiterated by the Minister of Public Works, Robert Winters, that it has been his firm policy, in preparation of the 1955-56 estimates for his department, to include only appropriations on which work will be begun during the coming year, and appropriations for those projects—barring unforeseeable "acts of God"—will be spent before the end of the fiscal year.

It is in the light of this cheering news that Newfoundland members have been appraising the work to be undertaken in their various ridings—work which will not only ensure the construction of much-needed buildings, wharves, breakwaters and the like, but which they believe will be of material benefit in solving local unemployment problems.

What were the reactions of Newfoundland's individual MPs to the blue book's promises for the public works they have striven to obtain for their ridings? A news roundup revealed mixed pleasure and disappointment, but a consensus of satisfaction that with an increase from 1954-55 estimates of $1,350,000 for building construction, and of $647,800 for marine works, every part of the province had secured its reasonable share.

MR. PICKERSGILL'S REACTION

"The most significant item in the estimates for my riding," the member for Bonavista-Twillingate, the Hon. Jack Pickersgill, told the News, "is that providing for the experimental plant for the Department of Fisheries at Valleyfield."

A large marine wharf would be built at Valleyfield this year, the Newfoundland minister said, and it was understood that construction would commerce as soon as weather permitted. When the first two sections of the wharf were completed, it was planned that construction would begin on the fish plant itself, which was designed to go into some of the major problems facing the fishing industry. Its benefits should extend far beyond the immediate area in which it will be located.

There were a few other major items included in the main estimates for Bonavista-Twillingate to which his constituency had been looking forward for some time, the minister said, as well as others which it had been hoped to include, but could not be undertaken this year. Then, too, there were still others for which he hoped the necessary surveys would be made during the coming summer, and sites chosen,—all as essential preliminaries to their construction.

Moreover, there were smaller marine works not individually specified, since any projects under $15,000 come out of the general vote and are not listed as independent items in the published estimates.

"I am particularly interested in some of these lesser marine works, as they mean so much to some of the smaller communities," Mr. Pickerskill said.. 'Of course, the picture of the year's programme will not be complete until the supplementary estimates are published," he added.

"As minister for the province, I am particularly pleased to see that the total provided for Newfoundland shows a substantial increase," said Mr. Pickersgill. "Particularly is this so in the building programme for Newfoundland. This programme will have two advantages—a number of large buildings which have been badly needed for a long time will be constructed, and the whole programme should result in increased employment."

NEWFOUNDLAND WHIP'S VIEW

Newfoundland's Liberal whip, T. G. W. Ashbourne of Grand Falls-White Bay, sums up his conclusion about the estimates for his northern riding as "not bad, if all the money is spent." For the programme of marine works, he pointed out that $1,140,000 of the total Newfoundland appropriation was earmarked for his constituency. He expressed satisfaction with the vote for the proposed fishery development at LaScie, one of the larger production points, to be undertaken jointly by the federal and provincial governments under the fisheries development plan.

Mr. Ashbourne was pleased to note that the contract had been let for the building of a wharf at St. Anthony, and construction begun last autumn. He was disappointed, however, that nothing was included in the estimates for marine work in Labrador, for which he had submitted a long list of requirements to Public Works. He hoped that this omission would be corrected in the supplementary estimates.

Labrador should try to get one wharf each year, Mr. Ashbourne said, and he hoped that the supplementary appropriations would include a vote for Forteau. In addition to the listed Grand Falls-White Bay projects, there were smaller wharves included in the general marine vote, with no list yet available.

The $200,000 appropriated for a new public building at Grand Falls would meet an urgent need, the member for Grand Falls-White Bay said, and he also welcomed the vote of $60,000 for a building at Lewisporte, on which excavation had started after the contract was awarded last fall. He was glad, too, that a new public edifice was included for nearby Windsor, an important growing town for which an up-to-date building was badly needed.

He would have liked to see other projects approved, Mr. Ashbourne said, but after all, there were the requirements of seven ridings throughout the province to be considered.

ST. JOHN'S MEMBERS

The representatives of St. John's East and West both agreed that they would have appreciated larger appropriations, but on the whole were reasonably well satisfied.

Alan Fraser, of St. John's East, was particularly pleased with the vote for Torbay, especially for the terminal facilities and the construction of the road from the highway to the airport.

It was very gratifying to him, Mr. Fraser said, that $50,000 had been earmarked for a wharf at Bell Island, as a terminal for the ferry between the island and Portugal Cove. This would be a great boon to the island dwellers. He also welcomed the vote of $100,000 (including a revote of $57,000) to complete a breakwater at Portugal Cove, in co-operation with the provincial government.

The appropriation of $45,000 for the repair and extension of a public wharf at Holyrood also came with Mr. Fraser's riding. He had wanted new wharves for Holyrood and Collier's, and was disappointed that these were not provided. A wharf at Holyrood would have provided better facilities for the general public, apart from the requirements of Fishery Products, he pointed out, and Collier's was the only settlement of its size without a wharf, which might have meant more fishing in the area.

He had taken up both these projects with Public Works, the St. John's East member said, and he hoped they would be included in the supplementaries.

"It's nice—but it might have been bigger," was the reaction of the member for St. John's West, Jim Power, to the appropriations set aside for his riding. While progress was being made, he would like to have seen other projects under way. However, he expressed satisfaction with an estimate of $100,000 (revote, $91,500) for dredging at Branch, and substantial sums earmarked for a breakwater at Portugal Cove South, as well as a breakwater and wharf at St. Shott's.

Both St. John's members were pleased, too, at the appropriation of $500,000 for a new post office building in the provincial capital, as well as $300,000 for improved accommodation for federal government services. This represented a substantial increase over the 1954-55 estimates, Mr. Power pointed out, and would ensure at least one, if not two, new federal buildings in St. John's, with construction under way during the coming year.

IN TRINITY-CONCEPTION

The member from Bay Roberts shared the general satisfaction with the Newfoundland public works figures, which he attributed to the close co-operation given by their minister, Mr. Pickersgill, who, he said, placed the province's needs before the Public Works department and the cabinet more effectively than they had been heretofore presented.

The votes for Trinity-Conception had been fairly generous, said Mr Stick; everything could not be expected in any one year. Tenders for public buildings at Harbour Grace and Carbonear would be called for, and construction begun this year. Smaller items were included in the general public works vote, and he believed it possible that a public building for Whitbourne might be among them.

Speaking of marine works for Trinity-Conception, Mr. Stick said that his riding had been the greatest sufferer from the January storms. Extensive repairs would be needed, and these should be undertaken immediately to ensure the opening of fishing at the usual

L. H. Dingman

At his death on July 5th, 1952, Mr. L. H. Dingman, publisher of the St. Thomas Times-Journal and the Beacon-Herald in Stratford, was the oldest active daily newspaper publisher in the Dominion. Born on March 12th, 1865, he was active in newspaper work for more than seventy years.

Mr. Dingman's first connection in the newspaper field came when he was ten years of age. At that time his father purchased the Weekly Dispatch of Strathroy and Dingman's love for the newspaper profession began its long career.

In December 1886 he, with his two brothers, acquired possession of the Herald, one of five weeklies published in Stratford, Ontario. In March of the following year the Herald was converted into a daily.

It was in 1899 that Mr. Dingman went to St. Thomas as Manager and Editor of the St. Thomas Evening Journal. He continued with this paper until April 1902 when he left to head a company to purchase the Journal's rival, the St. Thomas Times.

In 1918 he and the owner of the Journal completed the amalgamation. Two years later, in 1920, Mr. Dingman secured control of the Stratford Herald, to be followed in 1923 with an amalgamation with the Stratford Beacon. The first issue of the Beacon-Herald came on May 1st of that year.

Mr. Dingman never married. His great interests lay in the newspaper. A working newspaperman all his life, his ambition was to own his own paper. Community minded, he gave many thousands of dollars in free space to communal activities, the Red Cross, Community Chest, Service Clubs and industrial promotions.

His interests extended into almost all walks of life, including arts and sports. For the theatre he held a life-long enthusiasm. Civic beautifications and horticulture also claimed his attention. He spent many hundreds of dollars in having beautiful trees in the grounds of his home. He was one of the men who helped introduce golf to St. Thomas. The promotion of horseshows, baseball and cycling were also developed and publicized by him.

During the 2nd World War he was one of a group who underwrote the expenses of the girls who had been bombed out of St. Hilda's College in England to come to Canada. He was one of the prime movers of the new hospital in Stratford.

The development of a community depends upon men who will accept its responsibilities and Mr. L. H. Dingman, a charter member of the Canadian Press, belonged to this group. His newspaper, his activities, his whole being, reflected a public-spirited attitude that always leaves a place better than one finds it.

Retarded Children

It is only within the past few years that there has been an important awareness of the special problem of those children who through a variety of causes, among them pre-natal injury or injury during birth, childhood diseases and failures in pre-natal development, will never rise above a condition of total or semi-dependence.

The usual term for this wide and varied group is "retarded." Their numbers are great. In the United States it is estimated that one in every thousand will need full-time care throughout his life, four in every thousand can be trained to the point of self-care and a measure of social acceptability and twenty-five in every thousand will never acquire a mental age of more than 12 years but can be trained to get along independently but without the use of full discretion or judgment.

If we were to accept the American figures, as quoted in an article in the New York Times, as applicable to Newfoundland, we should have about 1,200 persons in this province within these three groups. The first attempt to do anything about the organized training of such children is the small school established under the sponsorship of the United Church Orphanage Board and this represents an important social experiment which may ultimately develop a much large interest in the problem.

An editorial in the Tampa Daily Times illustrates the need for increasing efforts to do something for children of low intelligence quotients. "Words," it says, "cannot convey the heartbreak and hopelessness which has in the past been associated with the retarded child and his saddened family. Misunderstanding of this condition has caused many family break ups and needless feelings of guilt and self-accusation. Only in the last few years has the problem of retardation come out into the open where it may be fully discussed and more clearly understood."

There was a time when an occurrence of mental illness in a family was looked upon as a social disgrace. There are parents who have had the same curious sense of shame about a child who is mentally retarded. Perhaps this feeling has delayed constructive action. But where the problem is getting close attention, parents have been brought actively into the education field. A school can accomplish only so much. The parents must take up where the school leaves off.

In the news item about the small school in the U.C. Orphanage it was stated that an association of parents has already been organized as part of the work of training. And the fact that these parents have revealed a genuine enthusiasm in the enterprise and their own role in contributing to its success has undoubtedly been a heartening experience for the voluntary workers who are responsible for initiating and operating this very fine social effort.

Debunking Lawrence

It was Lowell Thomas who first brought the name of Thomas Edward Lawrence to the notice of a world which was delighted to find relief from the dreary stalemate on the Western Front in the high romantic tales of a brilliant Englishman leading Arab tribes in desperate guerilla warfare against the Turks.

Lawrence was not quite 30 years of age when reports of his daring leadership of Arab raiding parties and armies were first heard. Acknowledgment has been made by recognized authorities of the usefulness of his efforts in the desert war but when he failed to obtain for the Emir Faisal more than the Kingdom of Irak, he went into voluntary retirement, ultimately seeking anonymity as a mechanic first in the Royal Tank Corps and later in the R.A.F. He was killed in a motor cycle accident.

Up to recently the Lawrence legend went unchallenged. He was the subject of many admiring books and was himself regarded as a modern reincarnation of the great Elizabethan adventurers. But Richard Aldington an able English novelist, was struck by discrepancies in the Lawrence story and set out to study it. The result has been a book that seeks to destroy the legend and reduce Lawrence to the status of a pervert and charlatan.

A great controversy has followed, Lawrence's friends have rushed to his defence. Where they admit faults in their hero, they have claimed that his virtues outshone them. They admit he was a bit of a poseur but they claim as well that he was a genius and an important contributor to Britain's desert victories in 1917 and 1918. Objective critics have contended that Aldington has allowed prejudice to carry him too far and that what began as a criticism ended in a tirade. But right or wrong in his views, Aldington is quite unlikely to destroy the Lawrence legend with all its powerful appeal to the romantic side of the Englishman's character.

City Transport

At its last meeting the Municipal Council heard complaints about the state of the bus service and agreed to ask the company's managing director to a conference on the subject.

The problem of running a bus service in St. John's in winter is not an easy one. On the other hand, the grant of franchise involves acceptance of certain minimum obligations including the provision of an adequate service and proper maintenance of the buses in use.

The point has been reached where the subject calls for exhaustive study in order that the public may be assured of a comprehensive and safe service.

It may be the case also that if facilities for the swift conveyance of passengers by bus were provided, fewer people would be inclined to bring their cars to work and indulge in their daily struggles with the parking problem.

Strength For To-day

By EARL A. DOUGLASS

THAT DIFFERENT WAY

One of the most amazing features in the ethical picture is the great deference we have for numbers and the Lord's complete indifference to numbers. If we want to get a great movement started, we begin to enlist the support of as many people as we can. When the Lord wants to bring some great enterprise to achievement, He begins cutting down the numbers of adherents until He has a little, solid core of people upon whom He can rely. In defense of many of our actions, we exclaim "Everybody's doing it" The only defense God makes of any action is that it conforms to the perfect law of righteousness.

Into the hearts of every one of us, God has put a voice called conscience. General George L. Carpenter, of the English Salvation Army, has written some very telling words about the ignored conscience:

"The ignored conscience becomes the dulled conscience. The voice of God in the soul can be silenced by habitual disregard.

"One of the greatest of today's snares is hidden beneath the fallacious argument that 'other people do it.' A thing is not right because many approve of it. On the contrary, in an age when there is little regard for God's Word, popular acclaim should be a danger signal."

Don't count noses or follow fads. The Lord goes about things in a different way.

What Others Are Saying

A KICK IN THE TEETH

(Hamilton Spectator)

Once again the British car business in Canada has been dealt a resounding kick in the teeth by one of its supposed friends. The much-publicized boast of a Toronto man that he drove a sports car on the Barrie Highway at 117 miles an hour—and kept down to that speed only because the road was icy—will simply confirm the widespread misconception that the reason for buying such a vehicle is that it is fast, when in point of fact its real virtue is the pleasure and safety which its handling and road-holding qualities offer at legal speeds. Such lunacy is one arm of the pincers in which the British car business is caught. The other is provided by the mope—the stuffy and conceited individual who pobbles down the open highway at a steady 35 miles an hour, convinced of his own virtue and oblivious to the havoc he is creating in the traffic behind him. Such people have a liking for the austere economy of the small English sedan. They, and not the cars, are responsible for the frequent grumbling about "those little English cars that block the traffic"

—:o:—

THE NIGHT DRIVERS

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

A few days ago a 22-year-old transport truck driver belonging to Sault Ste Mar was killed when his 10-wheel vehicle ran off the road after striking a jutting-out piece of a rocky cut. The time was 4 a.m., and police believe he had dozed at the wheel while he drove. Many accidents have occurred through drivers of passenger cars as well as drivers of big vehicles falling asleep at the wheel during hours of darkness. They may have been driving long hours and become tired, but there is a particular danger about night driving because of the loneliness of the road and the rhythmic hum of the engine, which has a soporific or numbing effect on the brain.

NOTES & COMMENT .. ..

Rotary International is, we see, celebrating next week the fiftieth anniversary of its birth. The local club is about 35 years old. We were in at its birth and wrote the first news story about Newfoundland Rotary to appear in the local press.

As a reporter we were invited by Mr. Harry Cowan to go with him to the Crosbie Hotel to meet a man named Bond. We think his first name was Fred. He had proposed the establishment of a Rotary Club in St. John's and Mr. Cowan was one of the founding fathers. In the beginning, it was a very small group. The classifications were not quite as broad and shaded as they are today to allow a larger membership. Or perhaps it was preferred at the time to adhere rigidly to main classifications.

At any rate, it was quite a small gathering that met weekly in the Green Lantern restaurant on Theatre Hill. The dining room used by Rotary was on the second floor. Mr. James Ayre occupied a position in the club that gave him the right to use a scaling gaff as a staff of office. Other charter members, if memory serves us right, included Charles Hutton, Sir John Bennett, Hon. Sam Mil ley, Charles Hunt, Harry Cowan, Vincent Burke and Reginald Har vey. These are all we recall from the dim recesses of memory but there were probably a score of others.

One of the principal objectives of Rotary in these early days was the problem of boy life and each Christmas a large number of city children came for Christmas dinner as the guests of the Club. This function was usually attended by the Governor. Out of it grew quite an important study of life in St. John's. Rotary's membership has grown substantially since then and its projects have become more diversified as well as larger while the group system multiplies the number of smaller social projects which the Club undertakes.

The Rotary idea has grown and spread through the years although it was not until recently that a diversity of similar service clubs made their appearance in Newfoundland. The Kinsmen, who are a sort of junior Rotary, were first. Then, at a later date, came the Lions and Kiwanis. These last two have several branches throughout the province. All these clubs have their own special projects and cumulatively the measure of their voluntary service to important social causes is relatively stupendous. It is questionable whether there is any other city in North America where so much work of the kind is undertaken on a regular basis by service clubs and their total contribution might some day be worth calculating as an impressive proof of the emphasis they lay on the word "service."

We have often wondered also what becomes of the more important talks that have been given to these service clubs from time to time by distinguished and knowledgable visitors. The business of getting first-class speakers who have something truly worth while to say is not easy in a small community on a weekly basis. It must have been difficult enough for Rotary when it was the only service club of its kind in St. John's. It must be much harder now that there are three such clubs. The marvel is that speakers can always be found.

In Rotary's long history many of the papers read or speeches made at its weekly luncheon have today some measure of historical significance. Often they dealt with very important aspects of Newfoundland's affairs, social, political and economic, and the collection of the best and most important of them for publication in a single volume might well become a useful Rotary subject. Far too many valuable contributions to the knowledge and study of our times have been lost to posterity for want of preservation by publication and there is no doubt at all that a careful selection from the 1500 or more addresses that have been made before Rotary during its lifetime in St. John's would make an interesting addition to local bibliography.

The coming celebration is, of course, that of Rotary International which was founded by Paul Harris on February 23, 1905. But that is no reason why local Rotary should not mark the occasion by undertaking as a new project the collection of some of the addresses made to it, always provided, of course, that the manuscripts have been preserved.

Speaking Of Rhodes Scholars.... Newfoundland's Minister Bows Out

By RUTH CAMPBELL

OTTAWA, Feb. 10 — John Blackmore, the irrepressible and unpredictable little Social Creditor from Lethbridge, Alberta, takes an extremely dim view of postgraduate studies of Canadians at British universities, and of Rhodes scholars in particular.

Speaking in the Commons on Wednesday in support of federal assistance to the provinces for extension of education, Mr. Blackmore, himself a graduate of the University of Alberta, scored Newfoundland's minister, Jack Pickersgill, for a stand "typical of Rhodes scholars" thinking.

As Hansard reports it:

Mr. Blackmore: The Minister of Citizenship and Immigration seems to feel that just to make a grant to the provinces in a general sort of way is quite unsound. That kind of thinking is typical of Rhodes scholars. It is typical of these bureaucrats whom we have in such great numbers—

Mr. Pickersgill: On a question of privilege, I am not and never was a Rhodes scholar.

Mr. Blackmore: I have given the minister the opportunity to make a statement which has released him from a good deal of suspicion, because he certainly has acted like an Oxford graduate, a Rhodes scholar. Generally speaking, men who have graduated from the London school of economics, have the idea in their narrow minds that they can tell anybody on the face of the earth how to live, that they know all about it and consequently we cannot have a country like Canada soundly governed unless all power centres right here in Ottawa where you can put these graduates of the London school of economics at work doing the job.

Mr. Martin: Will my hon. friend permit an interruption?

Mr. Blackmore: Very well.

Mr. Martin: It is very kind of him to suggest that my colleague, the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration, was a Rhodes scholar. He is not a Rhodes scholar, but in fairness to him I think I should say that he enjoyed a scholarship provided by the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire. I am sure my hon. friend would not want to make any disparaging remarks in view of this information.

Mr. Blackmore: My remarks were not intended to disparage the source from which a man gets the money with which he goes to university, but to disparage the attitude which men are likely to acquire in some of the universities of Great Britain. One of them is Oxford, another is Cambridge and another is the London school of economics. Generally speaking, when a man has graduated from any one of these he is a socialist in his ideas; he is a centralizer; he thinks nobody in the world knows how to govern a country except his own particular class and that the provinces cannot possibly produce people capable of governing.

Mr. Pickersgill: On a question of privilege, I am not nor have ever been a socialist. am not a centralizer. was arguing all afternoon against centralization, and the hon. member is now arguing for centralization.

Mr. Martin: I think too in fairness—

Some hon. Members: Oh, oh.

Mr. Martin: —to the hon. member for Greenwood who is not in the house, that I should say that he is a graduate of Oxford university—

Mr. Pickersgill: And a Rhodes scholar.

Mr. Martin: And a Rhodes scholar; and no one can call the hon. member for Greenwood a socialist.

Mr. Blackmore: I will grant that there are exceptions to every rule, but once more I am glad I gave the Minister of Citizenship and Immigration the chance to clear his name of a suspicion which lurks in many places.

Freedom Of The Press

"The Right Of The Public To Know"

(FIRST IN SERIES)

Free public opinion and free discussion are recognized as foundations of democracy. The way in which this principle has become woven into the unwritten constitution of the United Kingdom, and hence passed on to Canada, is discussed in the following article—one of a Canadian Press series on matters affecting freedom of the press.

Written For The Canadian Press
By FRANK FLAHERTY

Freedom of the press is part of the constitutional and cultural heritage Canada received from the United Kingdom. Eminent jurists both in Canada and in the United Kingdom have pronounced it an essential part of our system of democratic Parliamentary government.

Since the British constitution is unwritten it contains no precise definition of this freedom. Neither does the British North America Act under which the British constitutional system became officially implanted in Canada.

That act says Canada shall have a constitution "similar in principle to that of the United Kingdom." The implications of this were pointed up by Mr. Justice L. A. Cannon of the Supreme Court of Canada in a judgment delivered in 1938 on laws passed by the Alberta legislature.

FREE FOUNDATION

"At the time of Confederation," he said, "the United Kingdom was a democracy. Democracy cannot be maintained without its foundation: free public opinion and free discussion throughout the nation of all matters affecting the state within the limits set by the criminal code and the common law."

Freedom of discussion and freedom of the press became part of the British constitution only after a series of struggles waged in Britain over three centuries—from the time of the invention of the printing press, down to the time when the constitution took its present form, an executive responsible to a Parliament possessing unlimited powers but, in turn, dependent on the free vote of all citizens.

Before freedom of the press became established the press had to contend with three different forms of restriction.

First there was control over printing. When the printing press came to England the authorities were afraid of the consequences which might result from the public learning too much from the new medium of passing information from man to man. Printers were licensed by the government. A printer who printed things the government did not like could lose his licence.

MILTON'S PROTEST

It was against this system that the poet John Milton wrote his classic protest, "Areopagitica". Said Milton: "Give me liberty to know, to utter and to argue freely according to conscience, above all other liberties."

Milton's protests were ineffective at the time. The British licensing laws were not allowed to lapse until 1692, long after his death.

Another phase of the struggle was for the right of the press to information on public affairs, specifically the right to report debates in Parliament. Parliament at first did not take kindly to letting reporters tell the world what was said within its walls. Parliament itself was engaged in a struggle with the king and didn't want the king to know what was said in their sessions because the king still possessed powers to discipline members who did not behave as he wished.

LONG STRUGGLE

The struggle of the press for the right to report Parliamentary proceedings went on in the second half of the 18th century and was characterized by numerous arrests, fines and punishments inflicted on reporters and editors of the pioneer newspapers and newsletters. The press had its champions within Parliament itself and there were numerous debates before it became accepted that newspapers have a right to report Parliamentary debates without regulation or censorship.

Almost coincident with this development came the extension of the franchise and the change in the British political system from the rule of the few to the rule of the many.

The third handicap imposed on the early British press was taxation. Prior to 1861 paper used in printing was heavily taxed. This tax served to make newspapers high in price, was an interference with the public's right to know which may have had some consequences in American history.

The untaxed newspapers of the American colonies flourished while the British press was held back. The colonial press publicized and gave full support to the ideas of the revolution.

The late Prof. Harold Innis says: "The prominent role of the newspaper in the American Revolution was recognized in the first article of the Bill of Rights, (forbidding Congress to abridge freedom of the press). The movement towards restriction of the press by taxes in the latter part of the 18th and early part of the 19th century in England was paralleled by an insistence on freedom of the press in the United States."

Britain became a popular democracy only after the press was freed by the abolition of the taxes on paper. The principle of self-government for the overseas parts of the Empire became established around the same time. Historically, the establishment of Canada as a free democracy and its subsequent growth under the Parliamentary system is linked with and, in large measure, due to the freeing of the press from the triple curbs of:

PAPER TAXES ABOLISHED

1. Government control over printing;
2. Parliamentary control over access to information on public affairs;
3. Excessive and discriminatory taxes.

The question now troubling many believers in democracy is whether that freedom is secure or whether it can or should be reinforced by some written law or rule. Those who want freedom defined by a written law have to face up to the question of whether a definition may not restrict freedom.

Lord Kenyon, an eminent British judge, once described the liberty of the press in England this way:

"A man may publish anything which 12 of his countrymen (a jury) think is not blamable, but he ought to be punished if he publishes that which is blamable."

DEBATABLE POINT

That statement would imply that freedom to publish is part of the common law of England. If it is that and not part of the constitution, as Mr. Justice Cannon seemed to think, it can be changed and restricted by act of Parliament. The Parliament of Canada and the legislatures of the provinces can and often do change the common law. They could do it simply by defining more things that may be "blamable", telling a jury what to find "blamable".

If freedom of the press is part of the unwritten constitution clearly it can't be restricted by Parliament or a provincial legislature. So far as Canada is concerned it can't even be restricted by a change made in the British constitution since it is laid down that Canada shall have a constitution similar to that of the United Kingdom—at the time of Confederation.

This view found support in at least one official statement from the government of Canada. At the second General Assembly of the United Nations the Canadian delegate said:

"The people and the government of my country believe that freedom of information and freedom of the press are not only basic freedoms in themselves but are essential to the exercise of the other basic freedoms. Democracy implies that the ultimate responsibility for government policies is determined by the people.

BASIS OF JUDGMENT

"Unless the people have free and unfettered access through their independent news media to significant facts and opinions, wherever these may originate throughout the world, the people would be limited and impeded in their efforts to judge wisely the issues they are called upon to face. This would be a very serious limitation on the efficiency of what we call democracy."

As the role of the state in economic and social affairs increases, attacks on freedom of the press tend to take a new line. It is sometimes alleged that privately-owned newspapers do not and cannot be expected to give the public the real facts, that state intervention or state control is necessary to protect the public's right to know.

This view was so strongly held by a section of the British Labor party that the last British Labor government set up a royal commission to report on how a free press in the United Kingdom was doing its job.

The commission reported in 1949 and found no case for state ownership or control of the press. Its significant finding was "in our view free enterprise in the production of newspapers is a prerequisite of a free press."

Canadian Army Newsletter

A Weekly Feature

Dear Friends:

I remembeer I first wrote to you just a month ago. Then I didn't know what to say, now I find I have more to say than time to say it I hate writing letters usually, but I do like writing to you. Is it because you can't answer me back?

I don't like the word "expert" and I don't suppose any really informed man would call himself one but if there is such a thing as an expert on Current Affairs it is Mr. F. H. M. Jones, Advisor of the Bureau of Current Affairs of the Department of National Defence.

Friday, 11 Feb. '55, Mr. Jones completes a course which he has been conducting here since Monday, 7 Feb. '55. The purpose of the course is twofold. First to inform us and secondly to train some of us to be discussion group leaders. Because soldiers do not argue about religion or politics, don't think they are not interested in the doings and thinkings of the civilian world. On the contrary, the Army encourages its members to read and think. But that is not enough, there must be discussion for exchange of idea and flexibility of thought, so the orderly discussion group is set up. I assure you the leader of a discussion group needs all the skill that training can give.

Mr. Jones was at one time Manager of the Eastern Trust Company at Halifax. He is also a lawyer and for a time taught Law of Insurance at Dalhousie. He has also lectured in Arts and Science.

If you think you can shoot you should match yourself against the Cadets of St. Patrick's Hall School. Of their 90 cadets, 21 have fired a possible score of 100 during their annual classification. To make this score, a cadet must fire 20 bulls in succession on a one inch bull. You will agree that this calls for extreme effort on the part of both cadets and instructors. The list of winners of the Gold Snippers Pins is too long to give you all at once, but I will name some now and the others next week. Captains — E. Adams, D. Dunne and C. Green, Sgt. D. Jolliffe, CSM W. Lee; Lieutenants — D. Mallard, M. Murphy, R. Murphy, CQMS — W. Murphy, W. Mackey; Lance Corporals — A. Halfyard, and W. O'Neill. St. Patrick's Hall shooting range although improvised is extremely safe. It is located in the basement of the school.

Nine members of the Cadet Corps of Holy Cross School have completed a course on Driver Maintenance. The last four periods and the test were conducted by Sgt. Foster of the I and A Cadre.

Cpl. R. G. Organ who is Clerk Adm. "B" Coy R Nfld. R is taking a two week course in Clerk Adm. at the RCASC School in Borden.

Sergeant Major Chilton (WO 2) and S-Sgt. Richardson (both of I and A Cadre) are conducting a Senior NCO Course and the COTC Phase II (Militia) Course for the 215 Bty. RCA and "A" Coy R Nfld. R at Corner Brook. They plan to give a projectionists course to "B" Coy R Nfld. R at Grand Falls.

You have heard it said that, "The Best is not good enough". The Army takes that as true and is always trying to improve itself and its equipment. Because of this attitude our paratroopers now have a new parachute. The old one was 28 feet in diameter, gave you a violent jerk on opening and fell at the rate of 22 feet per second. The new one is 35 feet, has no jerk and reduces speed of descent to 16 feet per second. This makes an easier landing. Like to try it?

The Canadian Officers Training Corps (COTC) of the Memorial University are well on with their Sports Programme. The Inter-service competition for the Outerbridge Trophy (basketball) will be played in the university gym on a date to be announced. I don't know if they considered the COTC and UNTD Ball held in the Officers' Mess last week a part of this programme but they gave it strict attention. Oh well, "all work and no play" you know.

Last week I attributed a quotation to Sheridan. In that, I did him no good but the real author great wrong. Sgt. Kite was a creation of a gentleman named Farquhar who wrote in 1706 and had done some soldiering in his time. The method of recruiting however continued for many many years.

I hope I have not in the past letters given you the idea that the Army does nothing but work. In the Army you will work hard but you will find many play activities. For example on Wednesday afternoon 9 Feb. there was a great game of volley ball played in the Drill Hall. Officers versus RCEME. Officers took two out of the three games. Opportunity is afforded too for hockey and all seasonal games. The social side of the soldier's life is also fostered and so you find St. Valentine's Day marked by dances in the Men's Canteen, Sergeants' Mess and Officers' Mess.

Ptes. Barket, Healey, Ryan and McHugh of the Royal Newfoundland Regiment at Grand Falls have gone to Halifax for a three weeks Regimental Signallers Course. Successful completion of this course will qualify them for Group I trades pay. When a soldier becomes a tradesman his monthly pay is increased according to his trade group. So in some trades he may progress from Group I through Groups II and III to Group IV. Progress of course depends on how well he does his work and his willingness to study. You can distinguish "tradesmen" by a special badge worn on the sleeve. Thus the letter "T" means Gradesman Group I; "T" surrounded by a wreath means Group 1; "T" surmounted by a crown, group 3 and "T" surmounted by a crown and surrounded by a wreath means group 4.

In spite of what the many lugubrious people say there is a lot of happiness in the world. As I write this, the SS "Nova Scotia" is nearing St. John's from Liverpool. On board are Mrs. Jones and Mrs. Shoebridge with their small children coming to join their husbands. Pte. Jones and Pte. Shoebridge recently joined the Provost Corps of the Canadian Army and are stationed here. They have been about three months trying to find accommodation for their families.

Speaking about kindness, perhaps you don't realize what a good thing you do when you show some to a soldier. More often than not he is a stranger trying hard to fit into the life of your town and to make friends. He does appreciate it.

Until next week.

S. N. Afu.

Protect Yourself From Colds

One of the chief causes of absenteeism in industry and in schools is the common cold. This troublesome disease could be avoidin most cases with a little care. By keeping away from other people who have colds, you protect yourself from the germs they distribute when they cought or sneeze without covering nose and mouth with a disposable tissue. For winter protection against colds, keep to a well-balanced diet and avoid wet feet and drafts.

Named Minister

The Soviet Parliament, meeting in Moscow, has named Marshal Georgi Zhukov (above) to the post of Defense Minister. The position was formerly held by Marshal Nikolai Bulganin, the new Premier.

Sandwichets packed for lunches should be kept in a cool place—ger organisms muntiply rapidly under warm conditions

Shoe trees that become dreary-looking can be renovated. Sandpaper lightly and follow with a coat of thinned shellac. Dry, then put on another coat. They'll slide into shoes more easily.

Picking children's clothes, keep these points in mind: Colorfast fabrics, preshrunk, stoutly made. They should fit easily, be simple and comfortable.

TOO BIG NOW but someday it will fit. Life Insurance wisely planned today will guarantee your children's education even if you should die in the meantime.

FAREWELL PARTY

A most enjoyable evening was spent at St. Phillips on Friday, February 11, when members of the CEWA and GFS met to show their appreciation to Mrs. Elizabeth Yetman who has been a keen worker in both organizations, and who has now left the parish to reside in St. John's. Rev. Mr. H. Torraville, Rector of the parish, presided. An address was read by Mrs. Lillian Sheppard, secretary of the CEWA, while presentations were made to Mrs. Yetman by Mrs. L. Starkes, president of the CEWA, and Mrs. Pearl Sheppard, president of the GFS, on behalf of their organizations. Mrs. Yetman thanked them for their kind thoughts. The gathering then joined in singing "For she's a jolly good fellow." A delicious supper was served to bring this farewell party to a close.

Gamma Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi, Has Guest Speaker

At the regular meeting of Gamma Chapter, Beta Sigma Phi on January 24, the cultural program on voice and vocabulary was arranged by the president, Miss Isabel Templeton. The guest speaker for the evening was Miss Doreen Pollitt, music and elocution teacher at Bishop Spencer College. Her subject was voice quality and after an interesting talk she gave some helpful hints on voice projection, enunciation and control of breathing.

Gamma Chapter met again on Feb. 7 and the cultural program was taken by Mrs. Grace Butt, the program director. Mrs. Muriel McKay of CJON was the guest speaker. The program took the form of an informal interview on "Let's talk on radio and television." Mrs. McKay's answers to the many questions were most interesting and informative. Afterward, members of the Chapter heard their voices as recorded by a tape recorder and this activity was very entertaining.

Thanks go to Miss Pollitt and Mrs. McKay for giving up their valuable time.

Mrs. Eileen Thompson, Social Sponsor, and Mrs. Grace Butt, Program Director, were present at both meetings.

Household Hints

Most frozen meats needn't be thawed before cooking. You need to allow longer cooking time for unthawed meats, of course.

Women who go wild for copper may want to pester the old man for a new freezer with copper trim inside and out.

Run out of deodorant? Try baking soda, pasted on. It should last a day.

Wash out your nylon stockings before you wear them, if they're brand-new.

Never iron elasticized portions of clothes, fabrics waterproofed with wax, rubber or other meltable coatings.

To iron over a zipper, put a thick, dampened towel over the closed zipper, then iron. This eliminates that shiny ridge.

If you haven't much color and you don't use rouge, wear a deep pink or rose scarf at the neck of your suit or coat. You'll find it will give your face a "lift."

The big majority of medical prescriptions now are for medicines that didn't even exist 15 years ago.

Designs Can Be Simple Or Elegant

BY GAILE DUGAS

New York —(NEA)— From the tropics to wintry cities corduray has a fashion place. In the resorts wardrobes, it is featherweight and pastel in color; in the cities, it's heaver and thus cued to cold blasts.

For the tropics it goes into coats raincoats, shorts, bathing suits, sep erates, daytime and evening dresses. It can be starkly simple or richly elegant. INt hef eatherweiht it takes up little room in a suitcase, comes out with fmimimum of creases.

MULTIDUTY COAT

Unlined featherweight coat(left) is good company both on a trip and when you arrive. Designed for wear day into evening, it's in brilliant turquoise or camelia pink, is pocessed for wear in tropical downpour, too. Oversized pockets hold necesary oddments, have zipper coin purse flaps.

Bathing suit (right) dries like any cotton after a soaking in the sea. This one has an elasticized back and inner bra for figure control. French boy shorts inpart the long-legged American look. It comes in colors both light and bright.

Between Us Women

By RUTH MILLETT

WIFE WHO'S ALWAYS CARPING CAN MAKE MATE DISSATISFIED

If your husband seems vaguely dissatisfied with his life it could be that you are feeding him discontent in small daily doses.

Some wives never censure their chatter to cut out the kind of talk that breeds discontent.

Such a wife will hurry to tell her husband that the Smiths have a new car, even though she knows her husband is already frustrated by the fact that his own old car refuses to start without being pushed at least two mornings out of a week.

She will pick flaws in their friends so that her husband can't help but come to value their friendships less than if she had built up their friends instead of tearing them down.

She will talk wistfully of all the things she would like to have that she can't afford.

Always Belittling

ALWAYS BELITTLING

She will keep telling him what a good manager she is, so that he gets the feeling that the reason they get by is simply because she knows how to stretch his inadequate salary. In reality his salary may be perfectly adequate for the family's needs.

She will point out that other men in the office get better treatment than he gets.

She will find faul with his family, and dread their visits.

She will talk about how they aren't getting any younger and say that it doesn't look as if they will ever be able to do the things they once talked of doing.

And then, after feeding him such little doses of discontent instead of selling him on the idea that life is good and that they are indeed a fortunate couple, she wonders why he is so dissatisfied with life.

Pretty teeth make a pretty smile. Keep them white and sparkling. Three brushings a day are necessary—morning, noon and bedtime. More if you like.

Franks, Kraut and Pineapple Is Deliciously Differnt Dish

FRANKFURTERS, WEARING PINEAPPLE RINGS, top this Hawaiian sauerkraut dish.

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Bill Moore of Oak Park, Ill., knows his sauerkraut recipes. He should because he is secretary of the National Kraut Packers Association. He tells us sauerkraut with pineapple from the land of the hula dancers is one of his favorites.

KRAUT AND FRANKFURTERS, HAWAIIAN

(Makes 4 Servings)

One No. 2 can sauerkraut, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, ½ cup chopped onions, 6 slices canned pineapple, 6 frankfurters.

Combine sauerkraut, butter or margarine and onions. Turn into greased 1½-quart casserole. Top with pineapple and frankfurters. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 45 minutes.

Bill Moore has a round-up casserole recipe, too. Says it is great eating.

ROUND-UP CASSEROLE

(Makes 4 Servings)

One No. 2 can sauerkraut, 1 teaspoon caraway seeds, ¼ cup chopped onion, 4 frankfurters, mustard, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 package frozen French fried potatoes, salt.

Combine sauerkraut, caraway seeds and onion; mix well. Turn into greased 2½-quart casserole. Cut frankfurters in half lengthwise without cutting all the way through. Spread mustard in opening. Slash frankfurters in four places crosswise. Arrange mustard franks around edge of casserole on top of sauerkraut mixture.

Melt butter or margarine over low heat; add frozen French fried potatoes and saute 5 minutes. Turn into casserole on top of sauerkraut. Sprinkle lightly with salt. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 30 minutes.

Coddle Legs A Little During Mean Weather

BY ALICA HART

During winter, most of us add to our beauty routines something extra to counteract the action of cold wet weather. It may mean we leave the house with our faces shiny as greased apples, but we do defeat the elements.

Legs are more difficult. Any cream or lotion that dosen't soak in properly makes it impossible to pull stockings on. And with leg sporting a hard, shiny surface complete with scaly peels, practically nothing does soak in.

Attack the problem the night before. Just after a good warm bath or shower, you notice that your legs look almost human. When you step out of the tub, give them a good stiff rub with a terry towel. This will get circulation going and may rub off some of the scaliness.

Then, give yourself an anointing with a soothing, socking liquid. Many women find that Baby lotion is the ideal solution. Rub it in well and give yourself a massage as a pleasant to-boct.

Don't hop right into bed, but let the lotion soak in well. If you feel you've been lax, give yourself a second coat.

This needs keeping up, for weather does its nasty work each day.

A tip for teen-agers who wear ankle socks: change the height of your socks often. Otherwise, you'll find your skin soft and white below the sockline, and hard and red above. The looks odd when you're dressing in stockings for a date. Knee socks are a good gambit to avoid this entirely.

Brutal weather turns legs into a mass of shiny scales. Massage with a softening lotion can keep them lovely looking even under this winter's sheerest hose.

If you wear glasses, especially glasses in the plastic frames, play your eyelashes up with mascara. In this way the glasses will flatter your eyes, rather than detract from them.

Today's Recipe

CLEAR TOMATO SOUP

1½ cups sliced onions
3 tbsps. butter
2½ cups canned tomatoes
½ tsp. salt
¼ tsp. pepper
½ tsp. oregano
3 cups beef bouillon
1 cup shredded sharp cheddar cheese (optional)

Saute onion in butter until clear. Add tomatoes and cook five minutes longer. Add seasonings and bouillon. Simmer 10 minutes. Strain. Serve with shredded cheddar cheese. Makes four servings.

Household Hints

If your child has cut his knee and bled on his or her nicest ensemble, don't despair!

Water first, of course. Cold water applied to fresh blood stains will usually take them out. A small amount of synthetic cleaner in the water helps.

Sponge with a clean cloth, and if the stain persists, let the area affected dry, and then use a dry cleaning fluid.

Dr. Jordan Says

BY EDWIN P. JORDAN, M. D.

CAUSE OF TRENCH MOUTH IS UNCERTAIN; IT IS CONTAGIOUS

Vincent's infection, or trench mouth as it is commonly called, is an extraordinary condition. Two microbes are almost always found. A corkscrew-like one which is known as Vincent's spirochete and a germ-shaped one, something like a dumbbell narrowed at both ends. Which of these, if either, causes trench mouth is still uncertain. It is sure, however, that the disease is contagious and can be spread from one person to another.

If trench mouth starts suddenly pain is always present. The mouth and tongue burn like fire and excessive salivation is the rule; sometimes the saliva becomes actually bloody. The breath smells foul and there is a metailic taste in the mouth. In children sore throat, fever, pains in the muscles and joints, difficulty in swallowing and the appearance of severe illness are not uncommon.

THE LINING OF the mouth may ulcerate and sometimes an actual membrane forms which can be confused with diphtheria. The involved areas around the gums and throat are inflamed, tender, and bleed easily if pressed.

Erupting teeth or teeth in poor position, ill-fitting crowns or other dentures, poor hygiene of the mouth (that is failure to keep the teeth clean) and interference with nutrition of the gums often bring on trench mouth. Certain vitamin deficiencies, particularly deficiencies of vitamin C and B, chronic malnutrition, certain blood diseases, and several disturbances of the digestive tract enter into the picture also.

ITS TREATMENT is complicated and generally takes quite a long time. Smoking and alcoholic beverages are strictly prohibited, highly spiced and seasoned foods must also be avoided. In acute varieties, rest in bed is necessary.

The diet should consist of soft foods and in some cases extra vitamins are given. Cooperation between the dentist and physician often brings the best and quickest results.

ANYTHING WHICH lowers the vitality helps to bring on trench mouth. During wars or famines when hundreds of thousands of people are not getting enough to eat and are subject to great stress and strain trench mouth often spreads like wildfire. After any wasting illness, too, a person becomes more susceptible then when things are going well. But sometimes it pops up in those who are in good condition too.

Sharing Room Has Problems

BY ALICIA HART

It's all very nice, moans a teenager, this business of having dainty pillows on the bed and a neat closet with clothes carefully arranged. But what if you share a room with an awful little sister?

This problem crops up very often in these days of homes smaller than the families therein. The beauty-eager teen-ager settles down to a session with a razor and leg cream, only to be razzed out of the room by a sister and her gruesome cohorts, complete with repellent waterguns.

Pleading to the family that one has simply got to have a room of one's own does no good. There just isn't a room to spare.

The bathroom is shared by the entire family, so that's out as a beauty hideout.

The eventual answer is that that knobby-kneed specimen is soon going to want a little frippery of her own and will stay out of your lipsticks and keep her friends from playing hide-and-seek in your dressing table skirt.

Meanwhile, see if there is a closet or cabinet to spare someplace. Or build yourself one. Some families have ancient clothespresses stored away that take a coat of pastel paint quite well. Tear out and rearrange shelves. Paper and paint. Make it your beauty and clothes wardrobe, just as pretty as you please.

Then you can get your precious lipsticks and velvet hair ribbons out of harm's way. Make a deal with sister. She has friends in for their fiendish games on such and such an afternoon, but you get the room another day for record-playing with friends, or home permanents. And no butting in.

Throw in a small bribe if she needs convincing. An afternoon of basketball coaching or a drive to the country with some tolerant friends of yours.

Then, all you can do is wait.

The Limping Goose

by Frank Gruber

COPYRIGHT 1954 BY FRANK GRUBER. DISTRIBUTED BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Broke again Johnny Fletcher and his pal Sam Cragg are playing detective after being suspects in the murder of Jess Carmichael III, wealthy playboy in the apartment of Alice Cummings. Johnny had been the skip-tracer on a bill owed by Alice Cummings and she gave him a goose bank full of old coins to settle the bill. The bank apparently is a clue to the murder. Playing a call on the father of the murdered man, Johnny and Sam meet a cousin of the victim James Sutton, and Hertha Colston, who, like Alice Cummings claims to be young Jess' financee.

XII

"I like the way you got in to see Cousin Jess," Sutton said "Mmm, could you locate a man who, let's say, disappeared 12 years ago?"

"You name him and I'll find him."

"What does a skip tracer usually get?"

'Ten bucks," Sam volunteered inadvertently

Johnny gave him the elbow again. "Finding a missing person isn't skip tracing. It's detective work."

"Same thing, isn't it?" asked Sutton.

"Skip tracing a man who owes a bill is minor-league stuff. But a man who's missing, uh, that takes real detective work. And you know what the better detective agencies charge."

"I haven't the slightest," Sutton said. 'I'm willing to pay a fair price, though, to find my cousin, Lester Smithson."

'What relation is he to Jess Carmichael senior?"

"Nephew, same as I am, Uncle Jess had two sisters, Della and Carrie. Lester was Della's son Carrie Carmichael was my mother."

"Your aunt and your mother are both dead?"

"Yes."

"Mmm," said Johnny thoughtfully. "I catch on. With Jess the third dead, that leaves you the next of kin."

"Except for Lester."

"You want me to find Lester. Since you're the heir to the Carmichael grocery stores, I'll naturally have to charge you a larger fee."

James Sutton chuckled. "You are a character, Fletcher. All right name your price."

"A hundred dollars a day."

"Isn't that a little stiff?"

"It might be for the ordinary detective agency," Johnny admitted, "but when you hire Johnny Fletcher, you're hiring the best."

"Let's say $50 a day."

"For my A-1 work?"

"Your best Fifty dollars a day And there's got to be a time limit, of course."

"Ten days?"

"Five. Fifty dollars a day, for five days and a, ah, bonus of $200 when you succeed."

"Seven days and a $500 bonus?"

"Very well.'

"And a retainer of, say $200?"

"I'll send you a check tomorrow."

Johnny frowned. "Couldn't you pay something now—just to bind the agreement?"

"I'm afraid I left my wallet at home."

Johnny's frown became a scowl. "I wasn't able to get to teh bank today Sam, how much money have you got on you?"

"Why, you know Johnny $1.45."

"You too?" Johnny shook his head. "This is a bit awkward. Not even enough to top the driver." He turned back to Sutton. 'Haven't you got some small change on you?"

Sutton drew a $5 bill from his pocket.

A few minutes later they ran smoothly into the service entrance of the Barbizon-Waldorf Hotel.

"A nice drive," Johnny said to the chauffeur. "I may want you again, tomorrow."

"Very good, sir." replied the chauffeur. "Just ask for Wibur. Let's see, it's just about there hours. "That's be $18, sir."

"Very reasonable," Johnny said concealing a little wince. "I amde arrangements with the bell captain, Room 821. Here—here's a little something for you."

He handed the man the $5 bill he had just obtained from Sutton. The man touched his visored cap. "Thank you, sir."

Johnny, Sam and Sutton walked into the hotel. "I'll leave you now," Sutton said. "But I'll get in touch with you tomorrow."

"But better give me your number, so I can call you if I get something important."

Sutton suddenly grinned. "Look Fletcher, what's wrong with me phoning you here? You are in Room 821, aren't you?"

"Sure," said Johnny. "Room 821 . . . at the Forty-Fifth Street Hotel."

Sutton exclaimed softly. "But you charged the limousine to . . ." Then he chuckled. "All right, the Forthy-Fifth Street Hotel."

"Now you might as well give me you adress," Johnny said. "I'll find it out anyway."

"You've got a point there. Believe it or not. I happen to live here."

Although it was after 11 O'clock when they entered the Forthy-Fifth Street Hotel, Peabody, the manager, was in the lobby. He smiled wolfishly when he spied Johnny and Sam heading for the elevators.

"Mr. Fletcher," he called.

"Johnny turned to the desk.

"Harya, Peabody, a good nights sleep to you.

'But not to you," retorted Peabody. "I see no reason for letting you stay another night in this hostelry. As long as you're going to take up your abode in the subway, you might as well do it this evening."

CORNWALL

Now Playing

When John Ford is at the directorial helm of a motion picture little or no comcession is made to the fact that Hollywood is a land of make-believe. The three-time Academy Award winner is notorious for doing everything in as authentic a fashion as possible—even to staging a war.

Ford put his ideas to work during the filming of "What Price Glory," Twentieth Centurp-Fox's new Technicolor comedy-drama now playing at the Cornwall Theatre, with James Cagney, Corinne Calvert and Dan Dailey in starring roles.

For this story of comaradaire under fire during World War 1, Cagney, Dailey and the other male personnel in the cast, found themselves going through a special conditioning course which included the manual of arms and long hours of marching under tutelage of an ex-Army drill sergeant.

It has always been Ford's unalterable conviction that you can't fool a movie audience. For example, if a man is supposed to be carrying a loaded suitcase, you can't make an empty one serve the same purpose.

As a result, when his actors went before the cameras for battle sequences they went fully equipped, carrying back packs and other paraphernalia weighing exactly as much as those used in actual combat. In addition, Ford ordered his technicians to place explosions for the battle scenes as close to the actors as safety would permit so they could get the actual feel of warfare. To make everything complete, he uncovered some airplanes of 1917 vintage and had them flown over the battle area for an extra touch of the real McCoy.

"I've got a lot of respect for movie audiences," Ford says, "and I don't want even to let them down by not giving them as much authenticity as humanly possible."

Few directors approach Ford for his efficiency. He wastes no motion, no conversation. He brings his pictures in on schedule tolerating neither interruptoin or delay. He has demonstrated that a fine picture can be made without a great deal of fuss or needless expense. He appears to work leisurely, but actually he is one of the fastest directors in the business He seldom shoots more than two takes on a scene, and as a rule completes his pictures well under schedule.

One of Hollywod's most prized directors, Ford staorted winning awards in 1935 when he made 'The Informer' Since then he has added to his laurels with "Stagecoach," "The Grapes of Wrath," "The Long Voyage Home," "How Green Was My Valley, "Fort Apache," "When Willie Comes Marching Home" and "The Quiet Man."

"THE CAINE MUTINY" WITH HUMPHREY BOGART

Engulfing with tidal-wave fury, Columbia Pictures' magificent motion picture version of "The Caine Mutiny," the Pulitzer Prize best-seller by Merman Wouk now playing at the Capitol Theatre. Produced by Stanley Kramer in color by Technicolor, "The Cain Mutiny" stars two Academy Award winners, Humphrey Bogart and Jose Ferrer, as well as Van Johnson and Fred MacMurray in, for them, off-beat. "The Caine Mutiny" stars, as well, the United States Navy which helped to make the film as spectacular and as exciting as the U.S. Army did for Columbia's Academy Award-winning "From Here to Eternity."

"The Caine Mutiny" is great as a novel; it is greater as a motion picture. The film's scope is as big as the ocean on whose seething mass much of its action takes place. It has everything a movie can have: power, sweep, action, romance and, above all, drama. "The Caine Mutiny" is the age-old story of man gaainst the sea, and man against himself.

In transcribing "The Caine Mutiny" to the screen, producer Stanley Kramer obviously stinted neither production-wise nor storywise. His cast and technical staff have been faithful to the letter and spirit of the orginal work, the novel thath rips the steel hatches off a minesweeper in the Pacific and revals the raw emotion sseething beneath her decks. "The Caine Mutiny" forcefully incorporates such highlights from the novel as the yellow stain incident where Captain Queeg, strangely-acting commander of the Caine, displays a quality that looks suspiciously like cowardice under fire; the murderous typhoon at whose raging height the rugged Maryk takes command of the endangered vessel; the court martial wherin Queeg, a combat weary veteran, is mercilessly flyyed by Greenwald, the brilliant defense attorney; the celbration party pollowing the trial wherein Greenwald denounces the officer intellectual Keefer as the real author of the Caine mutiny; the tender roamnce between young Willie Keith and his lovely night club singer. There is the lusty humor of the sailors, the pictorial beauty of the tropical sea, and the powe: of the U.S. fleet in full battle array. Nothing has been omitted except where exigencies of time and another medium have necessitated telescoping the story.

Performances in "The Caine Mutiny" ar uniformly brilliant: Bogart as the erract Queeg whom one learns to pity as well as hate; the pitiless brilliance of Ferrer as Lt. Greenwald, reluctant attorney for the denfense; Van Johnson as the stubborn Maryk who, once convinced of a course of action, grimly goes full steam ahead, and MacMurray as Keefer, the sea-going snob who fishes in trobuled waters. Robert Francis and Miss Wynn are an attractive pair of newcomers as Willie the Caine's junior oficer, and his girl, a night club singer.

Edward Dmytryk directed "The Caine Mutiny" from the screen play by Stanley Roberts. Like the others who had any share in bringing "The Caine Mutiny" to the screen they rate the fullest possible acclaim.

"GREEN FIRE" WITH PAUL DOUGLAS, STEWART GRANGER

Rian Mitchell (Stewart Granger), romantic adventure, climaxes years of search for hidden wealth with the discovery of what he suspects is an emerald mine in Columbia, South America. His partner, Vive Leonard (Paul Douglas,) agrees against his better instincts to help explore the mine Catherine Knowland (Grace Kelly), operating her late father's coffee plantation, also opposes Rian's plan, despite the fact that she loves him. Her opposition and that of Vic grows stronger when workers desert the plantation to help Rian work his mine and when Catherine's brother, Donald (John Ericson), is killed just as the jewel of Green Fire —the emerald—is mountain, Rian is forced to lossen flood waters which threaten to divert a river engulf the plantation. But his greed for the Green Fire loses out to love when he finally decides to blow up his beloved mountain and mine rather than alow Catherine to lose her plantation.

The title says Charlton Heston and Lizabeth Scott are "Bad for Each Other" in the shock medical drama now playing at the Starf Theatre, but togeher they are wonderful entertainment seeking motion picture audiences. So is their co-star, British newcomer Dianne Foster.

Heston, who has rapidly forged ahead on all star polls since he shot to prominence in "The Greatest Show on Earth", is seen in "Bad for Each Other" as a young doctor who returns to the mining community where he grew up, after winning a colonelcy in the war. Determined to dedicate himself to the aid of his poor miner friends, he is lured into the remunerative "ghost surgeon" racket by the soft arms and softer living of glamorous Scott. As he steadily compromises himself, his profession and his talents, he is deserted by his idealistic nurse, Dianne Foster, who loves him but can not bring herself to share the tragic course he is pursuing A sudden mine disaster snatches Heston out of his false world and opens his eyes to true values.

Majorie Rambeau returns to the screen in "Bad for Each Other," after a nine-year retirment forced by an auto accident. Mildred Dunnock, who won an Academy Award nomination for her work as the mother in "Death Of A Salesman," play Heston's mother in this one. Other notable performers are Lydia Clarke (Mrs. Charlton Heston), playing with her husband for the first time, Arthur Franz, Ray Collins, Lester Matthews and Rhys Williams.

Irving Rapper directed the gloves-off shock story with all the hard-hitting punch and rough romance that characterized the novel on which it is based, finding explosive drama in both the intrigue-charged boudoris of the idle rich and the dynamite-loaded coal mines of Pennsylvania.

Irving Wallace wrote the screen play for "Bad for Each Other" with "Scapel" author, Horace McCoy Willian Fadiman was associate producer.

Dr. Jordan Answers

by EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Q— I have been troubled with pyslonephritis for onve a year. Would you discuss this Mrs. G.D.

A— This is an infection with germs of a portion of the kidney and urinary pasage. The treatment of acute phaese has been greatly improved by thesulfa drugs and by penicilin and its relatives. In the chronic variety th serch for obstructions or stones or other ocal diffifficulties may be needed in addition. Under such circumstance the disease is likely to, continue until the underlying cause has been removed.

Q—I was told about 20 years ago that I has an enlarged spleen. It has never given me any trouble until lately. Can it be removed by operation with out endangering my life? Mrs. M.F.

A—In certain conditions the removal of the spleen is desirable and this can be done without apparent harm to the bodily function. The question chould be gone into spleen has apparently been present for 20 years without causing trouble one would certainly hesitate to remove it without good reason.

St. Bon's Conquer 'A' Champs As Buchans Drop 3-2 Thriller

First Blue—Gold Victory Over Buchans Since 1949 Series

Underdog St. Bon's met the Senior A All-Newfoundland hockey champions, Buchans Miners, for the first time in three years last night at the Stadium and stood off the champs in a 3-2 conquest and a pulse-pounding moral victory which made up for all the years the Miners held sway.

It was the first time a St. Bon's team had beaten the Buchans Miners since they started the import trend in 1950. For 4982 fans who watched and thousands who listened at home it was the end of five years of frustration as the Blue and Golds put the club system of hockey on the line and made a snappy import-bolstered crew how.

For the whole St. Bon's team it was difficult to pick out a weak link. The team was an inspired machine with bristling forward lines clicking on al cylinders, superb defensive play from Hugh Fardy and Noel Hutton, and sensational goaltending by previously untried Merv Green who stopped the Miners cold when they were hottest.

It was only an exhibition game but the crowd had a world series and Stanley Cup flavour. Traffic jams resembled Regatta Day. After the game there was hand clasping and congratulating on both sides for a great game—the best the city has seen in many years.

Forward line star of the game was right winger Ted Gillies who scored two goals and pestered the life out of the Buchans defence with his speed and goalmouth savvy.

Fans who were crying for a rematch game will get their chance when Buchans visit here again for a two game series on March 3rd and 4th and then go to Buchans for a return series.

St. Bon's opened scvoring on their very first shot on goal against Gerg Floyd who had a string of four shutout periods at Bell Island going. The goal was a one-for-thebook beauty at 1.18 Gillies took a pass from centre Jack Reardigan near the left goal post and flipped it over the shoulder of Floyd into the upper corner of the opposite side.

The Blue and Golds matched the Miners strde for stride with quick line changes that saw the city champs keep up a bristling pace all the way through. Playing a two way game with fore checking and back checking brilliance, Hugh Fardy broke up attack after attack by Frank Bowman's classy Miners.

Lanky centre Hugh Wadden drew the starring honour for the Miners. Nursing an injured foot the first string pivot was beautiful to watch as he masterminded the Hornell, Dan McNeill line. Buchans' big chance in the first period came with Hugh Fardy penalized. Red Wadden stickhandled around the St. Bon's goal and blasted a bullet which Green turned aside.

St. Bon's outshot Buchans 11-9 in the first period but were held to a 9-9 stalemate in the second. In the third St. Bon's were outshot 10-8 as Merv Green earned his goaltending star.

Hugh Wadden set up the tying goal for Buchans at 6.40 of the second period. Wadden's goalmouth pass landed on the stick of Hornell who shot shot point blank at Green then poked the puck out of Green's glove as he tried to push it aside. That tied the score 1-1.

Third stringers Jack Ryan, Jim McNamara and Ed Manning were just on the ice as the second period neared its finish when they bottled up the Miners inside their blue line. Ed Manning slapped the puck out from behind the goal at 16.55 and Jim McNamara poked it in to give St. Bon's the lead again at 2-1. Buchans thought they had tied the score at 18.00 but Jim Hornell's goal was disallowed for interfering with the goalie by sticking his glove.

Quickly St. Bon's struck again in the third period. Hugh Fardy slipped the disc to Cyril Power who took it over the line at the 40 second mark and smoothie Cy passed to Ted Gillies in front of the goal. Ted fired it straight through the pads of Floyd to make the score 3-1.

The play see-sawed back and forth. Dan McNeil had a breakaway and Green came out to meet him and take the shot easily. Dan Bisson followed suit as St. Bon's defence slackened slightly and again Green gathered in the drive.

Al Mullins finished scoring in the game when Buchans had St. Bon's hemmed in and kept batting the puck at Green. Mullins let go a screened ground hugger from the blue line that Green didn't even see and the score was 3-2.

St. Bon's rooters, and there were many, started to chant in the last minute of play. Goalie Floyd of Buchans came out of his nets a foot waiting for the chance to desert the goal for an extra forward but St. Bon's pressed him back in as the crowds buzzed with excitement and let loose a deafening crescendo as th ebell sounded.

Great sports, the Miners embraced St. Bon's after the game and congratulated them on a fine game.

Eleven penalties were called by referees John Doyle and Joe Byrne, six of them to Buchans. Despite the number of penalties the game was a clean one with displays of temper rare.

LINEUPS

ST. BON'S—Goal, Merv Green; defence, Hutton, Fardy, Greene, Organ, Coughlan; forwards, Reardigan, Gillies, Sparrow, Power, Vinicombe, Corbett, Ryan, McNamara, Manning.

NEXT GAME

Feildians and Holy Cross play in the senior hockey series tomorrow night as league action resumes again.

MERV GREEN EARNS GOALTENDING STAR

St. Bon's goalie Merv Green, previously untried in city competition, earns netminding honours last night against the Buchans Miners when he turned back 27 Buchans shots, one more than goalie Greg Floyd of the Miners. Tony Walsh of Buchans, white shirt, digs for the puck as Green makes ready for the catch and Noel Hutton intercepts.

Orphans Skating Fund Donations

Another donation to the Orphans Skating Fund came in yesterday from the Commercial Hockey League with the sum of ten dollars. League president Terry Trainor sent along the donation with the best wishes of the league for the orphans.

The Commercial League's donation brings the amount to over eight hundred and fifty dollars which is ample to provide skating sessions at the stadium for the underprivileged orphans.

Two Shutouts Scored In Commercial Hockey

Four games were played in the Commercial Hockey League series yesterday morning and night at the Stadium with the following scores resulting in two shutouts in the four games.

Great Eastern Oil 20, Royal Stores 0.

Ayre's 5, Parker's 0.

London 1, Bowring's 1.

Terra Nova Motors 7, Job's 2.

Two players scored five goals apiece in the first morning game as the Great Eastern Oilers blanked the Royal Stores squad 20-0. Great Eastern oil led 5-0 in the first, scored ten goals in the second, and added another quintet of tallies in the third.

Carl Arns and Percy Chaulk each scored five goals for G.E.O. Fitzgerald scored three goals, Brown and Taylor two apiece and Kelly, Wilson and Newell one apiece for goalie Bob Murphy it was his second shutout of the season.

AYRE AND SONS scored the second straight shutout of the morning when they blanked Parker and Monroe 5-0. Ayre's led 3-0 after the first period and added two goals in the third.

Kevin Fallon led the Ayre & Sons attack with three goals. Teammates C. Oldford and Bill Rahal cnched scored single goals for the Ayre's victory.

LONDON'S fashion experts fashioned a 1-1 deadlock with the Bowring's squad in the final game of the morning series. London opened the scoring with the only goal of the first period and the Bowring crew tied it with the only goal of the final period.

C. Pearcey scored the only goal of the first period when he scored at 6.00 of the frame. S. Dyke tied the score at 15.00 of the third for Bowring's to make it 1-1.

TERRA NOVA MOTORS defeated the defending champions, Job Brothers, 7-2 in the night game. They led 3-1 at the end of the first period and 5-2 at the end of the second frame.

Tom Manning led the Pontiac Chiefs with a pair of goals. Spanky Armstrong, Copper Pittman, Murphy, Paul Bryant and Feild scored the other Terra Nova Motors goals. Gerry Seward and Jack Walsh counted for the defending champs.

It was announced that the game will go under protest because Terra Nova Motors scored on a penalty shot, and a disputed play.

BIG (W)EDGE—He's normally 6-5, but Glenn Abney, Los Angeles State center, elevated himself to 6-11 by strapping on these wedge shoes against Utah—and created a furore on their legality. (NEA)

Malc Campbell Tests Hydroplane

LONDON (AP)—Donald Malcolm Campbell said Monday he plans to give his new hydroplane Bluebird another slow-running test on Lake Ullswater Wednesday or Thursday.

He had his first outing in Bluebird on Lake Ullswater in the English lake district last week and reported: "The boat behaved better than I expected."

He hopes to break the world water speed record of 178.497 miles an hour established by Stanley Sayres of the United States.

WHY NOT ENTER SENIOR A TEAM FOR ST. JOHN'S?

Editor Daily News,

Dear Sir,—The public would like to have something official both from the N.A.H.A. and the St. John's Hockey League relative to the situation obtaining with reference to Section A of the All Newfoundland championships.

Is it correct to state that the N.A.H.A. in regular session commenced awarded the championship playoffs to St. John's and later changed that decision?

If this is correct why was the decision changed and exactly what brought about the reversed decision?

Is it correct to state that the St. John's Hockey League entered St. John's in Section "A" play-offs and later withdrew that entry and again later refused the application of St. Bon's team to participate as representatives in this Section A play-offs?

If this is correct there must be some good reasons for same and the St. John's Hockey League should state that reason and classify their position.

From information given on Radio Forum Sunday afternoon, it appears that the N.A.H.A. distinction between Section "A" and Sectio n"B" play-offs, is that whereas, in Section "A", imported paid players are allowed to participate, but they are not permitted to play in Section "B" playoffs. Further, from this Forum discussion it appears that the St. John's Hockey League's decision means that they will not play against or permit any teams to represent the St. John's Hockey League play against any team that has on its lineup any paid players this year, in championship play-offs. But, why this attitude and decision this year? A precedent has already been established in this matter in former years, when St. Bon's, as representatives of St. John's, were permitted by the St. John's Hockey League to play against such players as in Section "A" championship play-offs.

Time was when St. John's had no stadium and were very grateful to St. Bonaventure's for the use of their Forum to keep hockey alive, although played on a rereduced ice space. Now, with a stadium that St. John's can feel proud of and a regulation ice surface on which our teams can produce hockey equal to any played anywhere in Newfoundland, the St. John's Hockey League appears to get conscious stricken and falls back on a principle only, not to be represented in Section "A" All-Newfoundland championship as the only excuse for such a decision.

This is the year that the St. John's Hockey League should have entered an "all star team" in Section "A" of the championship play-offs and the chances are at least even that they would win through. If they did not win out, they would have at least gained considerable experience that would serve them well for next year's championships. All this has been pushed aside and the time-table of our hockey chances has been extended for at least another year.

Mr. Editor, the public opinion prevailing here in St. John's is that the St. John's Hockey League has made an unwise decision (of course this is not the only unwise decision recorded to that league) in not being represented in Section "A" of the play-offs, because it is considered, if the league is against this dea of paid imports to play hockey, the only and sensible way to kill it is to trounce the team that has the paid players on it and show those towns that employ this method to win championships that they will have to pay more heavily in the future by importing more expensive and better players, if they wish to survive, as our local, non-paid players can dispose of the calibre of hockey imports now playing in Newfoundland.

As for the argument, that if one of these teams, Gander, or Grand Falls, came in here and defeated our "All Star team" by a wide margin, the attendance at our local games would fall off is best ... ...ed by past history, wherein, foreign teams (at that time termed foreign, coming from the Canadian mainland) did exactly that, but, did the attendance at local games suffer afterwards. Mr. J. M. Tobin, secretary treasurer, and hockey player at that time can answer that one to set your minds at ease beyond a doubt.

Mr. Editor, it is not excuses why this position is taken that is required, but, the plain actual hard facts and reasoning as to why St. John's, the Capitals, are not in the Section "A" of the "all Newfoundland hockey championships."

Yours truly,

JOHN Q. PUBLIC.

Note To Kremlin— Canada's Spying At CAHA Request

By ARCH MacKENZIE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) — Note to the Kremlin: Canada has been spying on Russia!

A Canadian spy ring, its tenacles reaching into continental Europe, has been sending home secret reports—on Soviet Russia's hockey team.

This was disclosed Monday by Richard (Red) Stapleford, formerly of Stratford, Ont., and a Londoner for more than 15 years. He established the spy network at the request of W. B. (Baldy) George, president of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association.

The reports, now in the hands of the CAHA, were compiled from the findings of continent - based Canadian players, who were quietly tipped off to keep an eye on Russian exhibition games.

RATES CZECHS BETTER

Stapleford, who condensed the individual findings into one comprehensive report, says the consensus is—watch out for Czechoslovakia.

"The Czechs stack up as a better club, and,o55 ed to ease up when they played against the Russians.

"Every Russian can play 60 minutes. They have some unorthodox tricks, but there are some characteristics that can be exploited."

Stapleford said the report contains "some of the thousand and one things it helps to know." And he was at the airport here to pass along some tips to Penticton Vs, who made a brief stopover in London Monday on their way to this year's world championships in Germany starting Feb. 25.

Stapleford calls Penticton the "best Canadian team to come to the world championships for years and years—they can't lose, they didn't come over here to lose."

STRESS ON POSITION

Some more tips from the "spy" report:

"The Russians use short, high sticks. They play a short-passing game with the emphasis on position. The wings never stray. The team doesn't forecheck.

"Their goalkeepers tend to come out, and rarely use their hands. They often fail to smother rebounds, letting the puck bounce back."

But reports from countries such as Italy and Switzerland, where the Russians have appeared and Canadian players are plentiful, seemed agreed that the Soviet skaters are ultra-strong on conditioning.

Stapleford said he is impressed by the fact that Penticton's playing coach, Grant (Knobby) Warwick, has laid down a rigid training schedule covering diet and sleeping hours. His final word:

"It may not seem important to Canadians newly over here whether Canada wins. But to us who have lived over here for a long time it sure means a lot. I certainly think Penticton can do it."

Chris Chataway Accepts Invitation To Toronto Dinner

TORONTO (CP) — Chris Chataway, who called off an appearance at Ontario's sports celebrity dinner here next Thursday for health reasons, is coming after all.

The red-headed track star sent word to the Ontario Sports Writers and Sportscasters Association that he now feels well enough to fly from London for the $25-a-plate event. He will arrive in Canada Wednesday onen detrh ifr, a sell-out five weeks ago.

Chataway, who last year paced Roger Bannister and John Landy to the world's two first four-minute miles, is one of 20 celebrities on the dinner roster.

All proceeds of the dinner, about $20,000, go to the Ontario Society for Crippled Children and will also help launch the annual Easter seals campaign. The Ontario Hotel Association is paying actual cost of the meal, roughly $5,000.

Pirates Will Do A Lot Better Says Fred Haney

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP)—Manager Fred Haney of Pittsburgh Pirates looked over some minor league prospects Monday and predicted the Pirates will do a lot better this year.

Haney—along with general manager Branch Rickey—was here kor opening of spring training for 32 pirate farmhands.

The regular Pirate squad—which finished in the National League cellar last season—won't begin training until next month.

Haney said:

"Our club will be a lot better—a much better infield, a good outfield, fine catching and several pitchers who should be ready to show major class. Two or three top guys can change a whole team. Don't sell us short."

Yacht Champion Is Easy Victor

HAVANA (AP—Charles de Cardenas of Havana, holder of the world star class yachting championshio, sailed his white-hulled yacht Kurush V to an easy victory opening event of the annual star Bacardi Cup series. It was the Monday in the first race of the class midwinter regatta.

Dur ward Knowles 'Gem III, representing Nassau, Bahamas, came in second, followed closely by Kurush IV, sailed by Jorge de Cardenas of Havana.

Kurush V sailed twice around the windward-leeward course for 10 miles in one hour, three minutes, 53 seconds. Gem III was a minute and 17 seconds behind and only two seconds ahead of Kurush IV.

Vees In Berlin On Their Way

precede duesseldorf hockey.

BERLIN (Reuters) — Penticton Vs, who will represent Canada at the world hockey championships in West Germany later this month, arrived here Monday night by air.

They will meet a selected team of Canadians, Germans and Swedes in West Berlins Sportpalast in two friendly matches Wednesday and Friday.

Sports editors described the matches as the biggest hockey event here since the end of the war.

Five Teams Tied For Honours In Golf Tourney

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP)—Five teams, including two previous winners and last year's medalist, tied for medal honors Monday in the 20th annual mixed foursomes two-ball golf tournament at the Everglades Club.

Pat Lesser, Seattle, Wash., and Bob Sweeny, Palm Beach, had 35-36—71 over the 5,913-yard course where par is 36-35—71. Last year they won medalist honors with 73.

Others who posted par 71s Monday were:

Marlene Stewart, Fonthill, Ont., and Hobart Manley, Jr., Savannah, Ga., who won in 1953, 32-39—71.

Polly Riley, Fort Worth, Tex., and J. Walcott Brown, Manasquan, N. J., was who won in 1952, 35-36—71.

Bee McWane, Birmingham, Al., and Ted Bishop, Boston, 35-36—71.

Marge Burns, Greensboro, N.C., and Les Handt, Tampa, 34-37—71.

Deaf-Mute Boxer Out Of Danger After Wounding

AREZZO, Italy (AP) — Mario d'Agata, deaf-mute Italian bantamweight boxing champion wounded in a shooting Saturday, was reported out of danger Monday night.

His manager, Libero Cecchi, meanwhile, went to Rome to confer with officials of the Italian Boxing Federation on the possible postponement of d'Agata's bantamweight bout with Raoul (Raton) Macias of Mexico.

The fight for the National Boxing Association's version of the world title had been set for March 9 at San Francisco. France's Robert Cohen is recognized as world champion in many parts of the world.

D'Agata, 29, took a shotgun blast in his chest and stomach Saturday night after he got into an argument with his laundry business partner, Giovanni Petitto, 59-year-old Sicilian. Police said the shots were fired by Petitto and took him into custody.

Sunday evening from 6.30 to 8.30 p.m. the first session of the St. John's Figure Skating club was held in the Memorial Stadium, and 68 people registered and paid their fees for the year 1954-55. Several other people attended and several spectators stood on the sidelines to see how things were going and to decide whether they would join up at the next session.

Instruction in the basic figures were given from the loud speaker and several experienced skaters helped the beginners to learn their fundamentals before trying more intricate steps.

During the last half of the rink was used for waltzes and several couples demonstrated to the rest of the group the art of waltzing on skates.

Membership in the club requires only a pair of figure skates, the fee of $10 and the wish to learn how to skate the various figures of 8 and 3 and to combine them into the lovely waltzes.

When today's hand was played in a recent team match, the first round of bidding was the same at both tables. East opened with one heart, West raised to four hearts, and North then bid four no-trump. After that, the bidding took two separate paths.

In the first room, as the diagram shows, South bid five clubs. This was doubled and beaten only one trick, although a keener defense would have beaten South two tricks.

At the time, East and West felt ashamed of themselves for failing to get the spade ruff that would have set the contract two tricks. When they heard the result that was achieved at the other table, however, they realized how imagnificant their crime had been.

At the second tabe, South bid five spades (instead of five clubs) in response to the bid of four no-trump. West doubled, and neither North nor South ran from this ghastly contract. South was set six tricks, for the staggering loss of 1700 points.

Most of the blame went to South for this disaster, but North might have come in for a fair share of it. If he wanted to act, for which he can hardly be blamed, he might have taken his chances on bidding five clubs at once.

This was probably as good a contract as he was likely to find and had the supreme virtue of being crystal clear, Either a double or a bid of four no-trump might encourage South to bid spades, and then the fat would be in the fire.

It might be argued that a bid of four no-trump shows support for clubs and diamonds, since it shuts out a bid of four spades At lower levels, moreover, many experts use an "unusual" overcall in no-trump to show support for both minors. At the level of four, however, this it not absolutely clear.

It is a truism to say that a player should avoid at any time making a bid that his partner is likely to misunderstand. But the force of this statement is multiplied a millionfold when the bid is made at the disaster level. If you can't make an absolutely clear bid at such a time it's better to make no bid at all.

Plan Make-up For Lighting

BY ALICIA HART

Aside from voodoo and wild superstition, the interested mature woman ought to pass up nothing in her campaign to enhance her natural good looks.

Young things may get away with a dash of lipstick because their skin glows and their hair is vibrantly colored. Mature women should rely more and more on painstaking care and scrupulous assessment of their good attributes.

For this reason, though it may seem like a pretty persnickity piece of business, a grown woman may want to plan her face make-up to go with the lighting.

Almost everyone does this to some degree. A party, brilliant with color and gaiety, demands makeu-p that borders on the garish. Small gatherings in a home need make-up that will stand close scrutiny.

But mature women may want to go even further in matching make-up to the occasion.

For instance, our daytime make-up, which is generally an understated pointing up of our faces, goes best in outdoor natural light. This is the make-up we wear for being out and about.

Natural indoor light, the light that comes in windows, needs a heightened version of the outdoor make-up. Indoor light is less bright and one needs a touch more color to look natural.

Electric light brings up a more involved problem. This is a yellowish light, however white it may appear. This light fades out yellow-reds. If you want to look highly colored in artificial light, you need reds with a hint of blue.

Office workers know well, how unflattering fluorescent light is. Some of us who have this kind of light over our dressing tables know all too well, too. For this blue-white light, a restrained daytime make-up with bright red lipstick is best.

NEW YORK (CP)—The Canadian dollar was 5-32 of a cent lower at a premium of 2⅝ per cent in terms of U. S. funds Monday. Pound sterling down 1-32 of a cent at $2.78¼.

AMERICAN DOLLAR

MONTREAL (CP)—The U. S. dollar closed Monday at a discount of 2 9-16 per cent in terms of Canadian funds, up 5-32. It took 97 7-16 cents Canadian to buy $1 American, Pound sterling $2.71½ up 7-16.

MONTREAL CLOSING

MONTREAL (CP)—The stock market was irregularly firmer at the close of active trading Monday.

General Dynamics up 3½ at 115½ and Noranda up 3 at 90¼ featured the industrial market. Argus advanced 1⅛ to 22½. Other gains were fractional.

International Paper dropped 1½ to 86½ and Stelco lost 1¼ at 43. Powell River was off a point at 42½ and Algoma at 50½ was ⅞ easier.

Miscellaneous industrials and papers were mixed. Utilities, senior metals and banks advanced. Steels and senior oils retreated. There was little movement in the beverages and carriers.

Mines fluctuated in a penny range. Western oils were firm. Home improved $1.20 at $9.00 and Federal Petroleum firmed 50 cents at $4.50. United Oils at $1.49 was up 24 cents.

The stock exchange's closing averages show banks up 0.23 at 48.90, utilities up 1.0 at 120.9, industrials off 0.9 at 525.3, combined off 0.3 at 208.5, papers up 4.89 at 1204.06 and golds up 0.33 at 70.38.

Sag In N.Y. Market Follows All-Time High

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market turned in an irregular performance Monday and managed to close slightly lower despite a strong showing by many individual issues. The sag follows a series of three all-time highs established last week by the market.

Up with railroads were utilities and aircrafts. Lower were steels, oils, distillers, radio-televisions and rubber. Other sections were mixed.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 30 cents at $159.40. Industrials were off $1.40 while railroads advanced 60 cents to a high since 1930 of $123.30 and utilities were up 20 cents at a high since 1931 of $71.50.

Schenley Industries was down ⅞ at 24⅛ and Park and Tilford Distillers lost ¾ at 42¼ after the government in Washington instituted an anti-trust case against Schenley in connection with its purchase of control of Park and Tilford.

Canadian issues were lower. Hiram Walker dropped one point, International Nickel slipped ½, Dome Mines lost ⅝ and Distillers Seagram fell 1⅝.

Canadian issues were mixed on the American stock exchange. Royallte Oil added ⅛ and Lake Shore lost ⅛.

What stocks did:

	Mon	Fri

Toronto Market Irregular At Closing

TORONTO (CP) — The stock market closed a little irregular Monday after three straight sessions of gains. Profit-taking settled over the market in the final hour.

Western oils boomed ahead again after reports of a drilling 120 miles northwest of Calgary from which oil flowed at the rate of 56 barrels an hour. Home Oil gained $1 to $9.10, Federated Pete 55 to $4.55, and Calgary and Edmonton 25 to $15.25. Peace River Gas dropped 45 to $7.75 and Sapphire and Commoil were also down.

Noranda jumped $2.50 to $90 and touched $92 during the session. Golds eased narrowly, led down by Mentyre, off $1.25 to $70.75, and Teck-Hughes, off 20 to $3.70.

Low-priced mines were active and mostly a little easier. Gunnar, Consolidated Howey, Cassiar and Pronto moved down but Opemiska, Geco, Croft, Anacon and Algom gained.

Index changes: Golds off .18 to 81.81, base metals up .41 to 169.86 and western oils up .96 to 109.17.

Wedding At Harmon Field

ERNEST HARMON AFB, Nfld. —The wedding of T/Sgt. William R. Peters of Falmouth, Mass. and formerly with the 19334 AACS this base, and Miss Pauline Dwyer, of Norris Arm, Nfld. was solemnized the morning of Feb. 10th, at 1000 hours, in the Base Chapel. Fr. R. Weisenbach officiated at the Double ring ceremony.

Given in marriage by M/Sgt. Mike Tyan, the bride was attired in a full length gown of white nylon net over satin with a fingertip lace bolero. Her veil was ankle length held in place with a tier. She carried a bouquet of baby red roses and white nums.

Attending the bride was her sister, Rita Dwyer, wearing blue net, with matching accessories. She also carried a bouquet of red and white roses. Best man for the occasion was S/Sgt. Charles Robertson brother-in-law of the bride.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held for the newlyweds at the home of the bride's sister and brother-in-law, S/Sgt. and Mrs. Charles Robertson.

Sgt. Peters is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kempton, Falmouth, Mass. and is presently assigned at Travis AFB, California.

Mrs. [illegible]ers is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Dwyer, Norris Arm, Nfld.

The happy couple plan a honeymoon to the home of the bride's parents Norris Arm, Nfld. before leaving to take up permanent residence in California.

London Theatre Presents "Come Back Little Sheba"

This week the London Theatre Company is doing the play, "Come Back Little Sheba," by William Inge.

The play is woven around the story of a middle age man, called Doc, played by Leslie Yeo, who through disappointment at not going through with his plans for life has to substitute, and finds the lesser life so bitter that he resorts to drink as his consolation. His wife, Lola, played by Hilary Vernon, though she talks aimlessly of her beauty when she was eighteen, and yearns for her past life, is an unfortunate woman, who faced with the problem of a husband who drinks, allows herself to look slatternly and closes her eyes to the condition of her home.

To help out the finances in the home she takes in a college student, a breezy young woman, Marie, who is an art student. Honor Shepherd plays the part of Marie, and she has as her constant companion a gay boy, who poses for the art class, and prides himself on his muscle development. Anthony Sagar, plays the part of Turk, the model. They carry on their affair in the home of Doc and Marie, but the wife, busy dreaming, and making friends with the postman, played by Denny Spence, the milkman, played by Victor Adams, and talking to her neighbour, Mrs. Goffman, played by Avis Lennard, closes her eyes to this.

Marie has a sweetheart at home, Bruce, played by Joseph Shaw, who comes to visit her and takes her out.

The story is sad, and Hilary Vernon as the woman who gets no fun out of life, plays this part so well that at the end of the play she seemed to find it rather difficult to be her sweet smiling self as she spoke to the audience and announced next week's play. Her mannerisms, look, dress and voice all fitted into the picture of the woman who yearned for her dog, Little Sheba, which got lost and would not come back.

Leslie Yeo as Doc was in his element, and played this part with great feeling and understanding, time. He had advocated that such repairs should not be held up until the estimates passed the House. The urgent repair works might delay several other projects but he hoped not.

Ottawa Report

Repairs of storm damages would come under the general public works vote, Mr. Stick pointed out, and the federal marine engineer, Gerald Millar, along with the district architect, Lloyd Hopkins, had the matter in hand.

Operating on a five-year plan, the member for Trinity-Conception was of the opinion that the next three or four years would cover the main public works programme needed in his riding.

ON THE WEST COAST

The MP for Humber-St. George's declared himself well pleased with the appropriations for his west coast riding. Naturally, there was not provision for everything he had wanted, Mr. Batten said regretfully, but the amounts totalled much more than last year. In his district, he pointed out, it was not a question of repairs, but of starting from scratch, since there was nothing to repair.

He was pressing for harbour installations, at such points at Codroy, Grand Bay, Piccadilly and St. George's. The project for a breakwater for Cow Head had not gone far as yet, the member added; a survey and estimates for the project must come first.

Mr. Batten was particularly pleased with the vote of $450,000 for a public building at Corner Brook, as compared with the $75,000 set aside in the 1954-55 estimates. He intended to continue his efforts for a much-needed federal building at Deer Lake.

The member from Corner Brook shared with Ches. Carter of Burin-Burgeo the view that immediate action for improvement of the services of the Canadian National Telegraphs was of vital importance. The service was bad on the west coast, he emphasized, and rebuilding of the whole line was a pressing need. It could not all be undertaken at the same time, but action in the St. George's and St. Barbe areas was particularly imperative. There were no roads into St. Barbe, he pointed out, and only one boat weekly. He was keeping after the Department of Transport to take action on this matter.

The member for Burin-Burgeo is out of Ottawa for a few days, and his reaction to the blue book's provisions for his riding were not immediately available.

However, Mr. Carter was remembered substantially in the January contracts awarded by Public Works, announced here today by Mr. Winters. Among the major projects listed in an overall total of well over one million dollars were two for Burin-Burgeo.

The contract for a new federal building at Grand Bank, at a cost of $289,000, was awarded to the Newfoundland Engineering and Construction Co. of St. John's, and another contract for a $73,000 federal building at St. Lawrence went to the same company.

CENTURY IN BUSINESS

Dear Sir,—Referring to your article on Saturday morning last, "St. John's Newspapers of a Century Ago" and the reminder from Mr. Outerbridge in Monday's issue re Harvey & Co. Ltd. and Bowring Brothers Ltd., we think it is apropos that we should mention that S. O. Steele & Sons Ltd. are the direct successors of a Crockery Business established in 1848 anad in continuous operation in Crockery and Glassware since that time, and in the same location.

Yours very truly,

S. O. STEELE & SONS LTD.,

V. J. Sttele, Director.

Most people like English Biscuits. They are baked differently and the English seem to get a distinctive flavour into their biscuits. ELKES English Biscuits are the most delicious of all English Biscuits you have ever tasted and are now available at leading grocers. Why not try them!

"Boy! We'll really drive 'em nuts with popcorn today!"

A U.S. Navy LSM docks at Keelung, Formosa, with evacuees from the invasion-threatened Tachen Islands. The craft, carrying mostly Nationalist Chinese Air Force ground personnel, was the first to arrive since the U.S. Seventh Fleet became actively engaged in the pullback.
